No. 161.—His Highness the Maharaja's Government hereby sanction the introduction of the following rules in respect of Government Savings Banks in supersession of all existing Rules on the subject.

The new rules will come into force from the 1st April 1888.

I.—In these Rules—

"Depositor" and "Deposit" bear the meaning which they bear in The Government Savings Bank Act, 1875.

"Account" means the account of a Depositor in a Government Savings Bank.

"Balance" means the balance at credit of an account.

II.—Any person may become a Depositor on his own behalf, or on behalf of any other named person dependent upon him. Deposits may also be made by the Managers of Benevolent or other Public Associations or by Public Officers, of money deposited with them ex-officio as security for the discharge of any public duty or for the fidelity of any Public Officer, or for the accomplishment of any public object.

III.—Subject to the provisions of these Rules, the Government of Mysore guarantees the repayment of every deposit, with interest.

IV.—Without the sanction of the Comptroller, no Account will be opened for less than One Rupee, and no person may deposit more than Five Thousand Rupees in all, between the 1st of April in any year and the 31st March of the following year.

V.—Interest will not be allowed upon a smaller balance than Rs. 1¾, or upon the excess in any balance over the highest multiple of Rs. 1¾.

VI.—Interest will be allowed for each Calendar Month upon the minimum Balance of the Account between the close of the Fourth Day and the end of the Month.

VII.—Till further notice, interest will be allowed upon deposits at the rate of one pice a Month for every Rs. 7—10—8, which is equal to one anna for every Rs. 20, being at the rate of Rs. 3¾ per centum per annum. Without the sanction of the Comptroller, no higher Monthly Interest will be allowed upon any balance than Rs. 15¾; being the interest upon Rs. 5,000.

In calculating interest, one anna will be taken as the interest for one month on every twenty rupees of the amount entitled to bear interest; and for broken sums below twenty rupees the following table will be used :—

Principal			Interest.		Principal			Interest.
Rs.	A.	P.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.	A.	P.

" ..	..	14	6	10	.. ..	0	0	8
Total....		134	6	10	Total....	0	6	8

VIII.—Every Account will be made up on the 31st March, and the interest then due, calculated under these Rules, added to the Balance upon which future interest will accrue. If an account is closed on any other date, interest due to the end of the preceding Calendar Month will be paid to the Depositor: but a Depositor who closes an Account should not, ordinarily, be permitted immediately to re-open it, except on payment of a fine varying at the discretion of the Treasury Officer from One to Ten Rupees.

IX.—Whenever a Depositor changes his residence, an Account may be transferred, free of charge, to the Government Savings Bank in the District to which the Depositor is removing. Without the special permission of the Comptroller, an Account may not be otherwise transferred from one Bank to another.

X.—A Deposit Book will be supplied to each Depositor, in which the Treasury Officer will acknowledge every Deposit. The personal attendance of a Depositor is not required: but no Deposit will be received, or payment made, without the Depositor's Deposit Book, and the Government will not be responsible for any Deposit the receipt of which is not acknowledged in a Deposit Book. The interest, due to date, will be entered in each Deposit Book the first time that it is produced after the 31st March. The first Deposit Book will be supplied free of charge; but, if a Deposit Book is lost or injured, or if a Closed Account is re-opened, One Rupee will be charged for a new book.

XI.—Without special permission, a Depositor may not draw upon his Account more than once in thirty days, or open more than one Account in his own name or in the name of any member of his family or for his own benefit or the benefit of any member of his family. The Comptroller must take precautions to prevent any transgression of this Rule, and, in particular, any employment of an Account as an ordinary drawing Account. This Rule is not meant to prevent any one from opening more than one ex-officio or public Account.

XII.—The Treasury Officer may refuse to open any Account or may close any Account, for any sufficient reason, as, for example, because he thinks that the Account is likely to be used, or is being used, contrary to the object with which Government Savings Banks are established, namely, the encouragement of saving. But every such refusal or closure, and the reasons for it, should be reported to the Comptroller.

XIII.—When the Treasury Officer thinks it proper to close any Account, he shall give notice in writing to the Depositor of such closure. After the date of such notice, no Deposit shall be accepted on the Account so closed and no interest shall be allowed upon the Balance of the Closed Account after the end of the Calendar Month then current.

XIV.—These Rules apply as well to Accounts opened before as after their publication. Save that upon Accounts opened before the date of these Rules, interest will be calculated, up to the 31st March 1888, at the rate of 4½ per centum per annum.

XV.—The Government of Mysore reserves the right to alter or add to these Rules at any time.

XVI.—A copy of the Government Savings Banks Act, 1873, and of these Rules, shall be printed in each Deposit Book delivered after this date, and the signature, or, if he cannot write, mark, of the Depositor obtained to the annexed declaration before any deposit is accepted from him.

XVII.—These Rules shall come into force from the 1st April 1888.

Declaration to be recorded in accordance with Rule XVI.

I, acknowledge that I have read these Rules (or, if he cannot read, that these rules have been read to me).

GENERAL.

NOTIFICATIONS.

The 14th December 1887.

NO. 160.—The Inamdars of whole villages in the Shimoga District whose jungles are adjoining those of Government, are hereby required to demarcate their respective jungles by placing at every 100 yards of their line, stone (rough or prepared) pillars of not less than 4 feet in height each, wherever the same is obtainable; or by heaped stone mounds in the shape of a cone after due notice is given to them to that effect by the Assistant Conservator of Forests under the orders of the Deputy Commissioner; failing which, the same will be done by Government and the cost recovered from the Inamdars as a revenue demand.

No. 161.—His Highness the Maharaja's Government hereby sanction the introduction of the following rules in respect of Government Savings Banks in supersession of all existing Rules on the subject.

The new rules will come into force from the 1st April 1888.

I.—In these Rules—

"Depositor" and "Deposit" bear the meaning which they bear in The Government Savings Bank Act, 1873.

"Account" means the account of a Depositor in a Government Savings Bank.

"Balance" means the balance at credit of an account.

II.—Any person may become a Depositor on his own behalf, or on behalf of any other named person dependent upon him. Deposits may also be made by the Managers of Benevolent or other Public Associations or by Public Officers, of money deposited with them ex-officio as security for the discharge of any public duty or for the fidelity of any Public Officer, or for the accomplishment of any public object.

III.—Subject to the provisions of these Rules, the Government of Mysore guarantees the repayment of every deposit, with interest.

IV.—Without the sanction of the Comptroller, no Account will be opened for less than One Rupee, and no person may deposit more than Five Thousand Rupees in all, between the 1st of April in any year and the 31st March of the following year.

V.—Interest will not be allowed upon a smaller balance than Rs. 1¾, or upon the excess in any balance over the highest multiple of Rs. 1¾.

VI.—Interest will be allowed for each Calendar Month upon the minimum Balance of the Account between the close of the Fourth Day and the end of the Month.

VII.—Till further notice, interest will be allowed upon deposits at the rate of one pie a Month for every Rs. 1—10—6, which is equal to one anna for every Rs. 20, being at the rate of Rs. 3¾ per centum per annum. Without the sanction of the Comptroller, no higher Monthly Interest will be allowed upon any balance than Rs. 15¾; being the interest upon Rs. 5,000.

In calculating interest, one anna will be taken as the interest for one month on every twenty rupees of the amount entitled to bear interest; and for broken sums below twenty rupees the following table will be used :—

Principal.			Interest.		Principal.			Interest.
Rs.	A.	P.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.	A.	P.

"	14	6	10	.. ..	0	0	8
Total....	134	6	10	Total....	0	6	8

VIII.—Every Account will be made up on the 31st March, and the interest then due, calculated under these Rules, added to the Balance upon which future interest will accrue. If an account is closed on any other date, interest due to the end of the preceding Calendar Month will be paid to the Depositor; but a Depositor who closes an Account should not, ordinarily, be permitted immediately to re-open it, except on payment of a fine varying at the discretion of the Treasury Officer from One to Ten Rupees.

IX.—Whenever a Depositor changes his residence, an Account may be transferred, free of charge, to the Government Savings Bank in the District to which the Depositor is removing. Without the special permission of the Comptroller, an Account may not be otherwise transferred from one Bank to another.

X.—A Deposit Book will be supplied to each Depositor, in which the Treasury Officer, will acknowledge every Deposit. The personal attendance of a Depositor is not required; but no Deposit will be received, or payment made, without the Depositor's Deposit Book, and the Government will not be responsible for any Deposit the receipt of which is not acknowledged in a Deposit Book. The interest, due to date, will be entered in each Deposit Book the first time that it is produced after the 31st March. The first Deposit Book will be supplied free of charge; but, if a Deposit Book is lost or injured, or if a Closed Account is re-opened, One Rupee will be charged for a new book.

XI.—Without special permission, a Depositor may not draw upon his Account more than once in thirty days, or open more than one Account in his own name or in the name of any member of his family or for his own benefit or the benefit of any member of his family. The Comptroller must take precautions to prevent any transgression of this Rule, and, in particular, any employment of an Account as an ordinary drawing Account. This Rule is not meant to prevent any one from opening more than one ex-officio or public Account.

XII.—The Treasury Officer may refuse to open any Account or may close any Account, for any sufficient reason, as, for example, because he thinks that the Account is likely to be used, or is being used, contrary to the object with which Government Savings Banks are established, namely, the encouragement of saving. But every such refusal or closure, and the reasons for it, should be reported to the Comptroller.

XIII.—When the Treasury Officer thinks it proper to close any Account, he shall give notice in writing to the Depositor of such closure. After the date of such notice, no Deposit shall be accepted on the Account so closed and no interest shall be allowed upon the Balance of the Closed Account after the end of the Calendar Month then current.

XIV.—These Rules apply as well to Accounts opened before as after their publication. Save that upon Accounts opened before the date of these Rules, interest will be calculated, up to the 31st March 1888, at the rate of 4½ per centum per annum.

XV.—The Government of Mysore reserves the right to alter or add to these Rules at any time.

XVI.—A copy of the Government Savings Banks Act, 1873, and of these Rules, shall be printed in each Deposit Book delivered after this date, and the signature, or, if he cannot write, mark, of the Depositor obtained to the annexed declaration before any deposit is accepted from him.

XVII.—These Rules shall come into force from the 1st April 1888.

Declaration to be recorded in accordance with Rule XVI.

I, acknowledge that I have read these Rules (or, if he cannot read, that these rules have been read to me).

[illegible] it is hoped that the scholarships will all be held by boys in the classes for which they are provided.

9. The case of any Muhammadan State pensioners deserving of special consideration will be dealt with under the rules of this date relating to scholarships to members of the more important Sardar families.

The licensees are bound to keep to the routes prescribed and to return the licenses on or before the date fixed therein. In the case of charcoal transported beyond the Mysore country, the licenses shall be delivered up to the Sayer chaukis on the frontier and, in the absence of this agency, to the Patels of the village specified in the license, who are required to examine the laden carts. The carts shall also be liable to examination by Police, Forest and Revenue officers.

3. If within the time specified in the license or pass, the holder thereof fails to remove the charcoal, the license or pass shall become null and void and the licensee shall not have any right to the refund of the fee.

4. The whole quantity covered by license or pass shall be removed in one lot and at one time.

5. The license-holder shall have no right to claim charcoal from a jungle other than the one named in his license on the ground that he failed to obtain the quantity in that jungle.

7. It shall be competent for the Deputy Commissioner to close any jungle or parts thereof to the public and prohibit therein all cutting of wood and burning of charcoal.

8. Any person found cutting or burning wood in or removing charcoal from a closed jungle, or removing the same from the jungle allotted in excess of the number of cart loads, bullock, ass or head loads covered by the license or pass, or any person removing charcoal under a time-expired license or pass shall be deemed to have removed such charcoal without a license or pass.

9. The above rules do not affect the existing privileges of kandayam paying ryots or of mohatarfa paying chunam kiln or charcoal burners, iron smelters or iron smiths to get firewood free for charcoal burning; but such persons (excepting ryots whose privileges shall cease if abuse be committed) shall be bound to take out licenses (free) as in the case of other individuals and be similarly bound by the terms of such licenses as already laid down in preceding paras of these rules. These privileges shall for the present continue to be exercised only in the District jungles or parts of such jungles allotted, pending the formation of Village forests or the introduction of other arrangements. The charcoal thus obtained free for bonâ fide use shall not be sold, or bartered, or in any way used, or transferred for purposes of trade. The prohibition regarding sale or barter in rule 9 shall not apply to Bestars and others living by the sale of charcoal which they get free like others and paying mohatarfa. The quantity removed by them at a time upon a free license shall not exceed the limit fixed by the Deputy Commissioner.

10. The following kinds of trees shall not be felled or burnt for charcoal either by traders or ryots and others:—

No. 185.—Under the provisions of Section 55, Clause (g) of the Excise Act (XXII of 1881), His Highness the Maharaja's Government hereby sanction the introduction of the following rules for the exercise of proper check over consignments of liquor sent from the Government Distillery to wholesale depôts and the disposal of the rahadaris which accompany them:—

1. Every consignment of liquor will be covered by a rahadari in duplicate, the original being left with the cart-man, the duplicate being sent on to the Amildar of the Taluk, where the wholesale depôt is situated, and the counterfoil being retained in the Distillery Office.

2. The cart with liquor and the rahadari must first be taken to the Amildar if the depôt is situated at Taluk Head-quarters, or to such other official as the Amildar may delegate if the depôt is in any outlying town in his Taluk.

3. The contents of the rahadari should be compared with the duplicate copy received by the Amildar, as well as with the details painted on the casks, and the seals on the casks examined.

4. The date and hour should then be recorded on the back of the rahadari under the signature and designation of the official appointed by the Amildar for this purpose, and the consignment then passed on to the depôt to be there booked.

5. The rahadari should at once be sent back by the depôt wholesale vendor to the Government official appointed by the Amildar, who should see that the wholesale vendor has noted underneath the Taluk official's endorsement "Contents received and booked," with the date and hour of receipt at the depôt.

6. All the rahadaris thus collected during the month should, on the 1st of the following month, be brought with a "Patti," giving name of depôt, No., date and contents of pass (Gs.—Drs) to the Amildar, who will, after satisfying himself that the instructions given above have been fully complied with, score the rahadari across thus X in red ink from end to end, write the word "Cancelled" across the face of each pass under his seal and signature, and send the patti and the cancelled rahadaris on to the Deputy Commissioner of the District.

7. On receipt of these at the District Office, the contents given on the "patti" should be compared with the abstract account of issues of liquor from the Distillery sent by the Special Assistant Commissioner, Abkari and Excise, monthly to each Deputy Commissioner, and the "patti" and the file of cancelled rahadaris then sent on to the Deputy Commissioner, Bangalore District.

8. As the rahadaris are received at the Bangalore District Office, they will be compared with the detailed accounts rendered for the whole Province by the Special Assistant Commissioner, and retained as vouchers till six months after each contract has been closed, when they may be destroyed.

9. When consignments are received without a rahadari, the liquor should be attached, and the matter at once brought to the notice of the Amildar. If he is satisfied that no fraud exists, he may release the liquor on the security of the wholesale vendor, intimating particulars to the Special Assistant Commissioner, Abkari and Excise, at Bangalore, who will send a duplicate of the rahadari.

10. If the contents (Gs. and Drs, No. and place) as given in the rahadari do not substantially tally with those noted on the cask, the liquor will be sent on to the depôt with the same precautions which are required to be taken under Rule 9, to be there examined either by the Amildar himself or by any other officer appointed by him; and a report of such examination should be forwarded by the Amildar to the Special Assistant Commissioner.

11. The Deputy Commissioners will give such of the Police officers and Revenue officials drawing Rs. 10 and above as are invested with the powers of Excise officers, under Dewan's Notification No. 63, dated 8th July 1884, to understand that it is their duty to see that liquors or drugs, when taken, are covered by a Government rahadari, and that if they are not so covered, they should hand the parties in possession of such liquors or drugs, over to the nearest Police station for disposal according to law.

The 30th January 1888.

It is hereby notified for public information that the undermentioned jodi villages, which have been duly attached in satisfaction of the arrears of revenue due to Government (as shown in the subjoined statement) by the said jodidars, will be sold by public auction at the places and on the dates mentioned in the annexed statement. The sale will commence at 11 A. M. on the date specified, and the village will be knocked down to the highest bidder without reserve.

2. Provided that when a village is divided into separate recognized vrittis, the Deputy Commissioner may, at his option, instead of selling the village as a whole, sell each vritti separately.

3. The purchaser will be required to deposit 25 per cent of the purchase money at the time of sale, and where the remainder of the purchase money may not be paid within fifteen days from the day of sale, the money so deposited shall be liable to forfeiture.

4. When such deposit shall not be made, nor the remaining purchase money paid up, the lands shall be resold at the expense and risk of the first purchaser.

5. Persons bidding at the sale may be required to state whether they bid on their own account or as agents, and in the latter case to deposit a written authority signed by their principals, otherwise their bids may be rejected.

6. The sale shall be stayed, if the defaulter or any other person acting on his behalf or claiming an interest in the land, tenders the full amount of the arrears of the revenue with the interest and other charges, provided such tender be made before sunset on the day previous to that appointed for the sale.

7. The sale of the property will not become absolute until the sale has been confirmed by the Dewan.

8. Purchasers having completed the payment of the purchase money will, as soon as the sale has been confirmed by the Dewan, be placed in immediate possession and the village will be registered in the name of the purchaser, and a certificate of sale signed and sealed by the Deputy Commissioner will be granted to him. It is to be distinctly understood that the Government are not responsible for errors of description and in estimated extent.

9. Provided parties deeming themselves aggrieved by the sale shall be at liberty to appeal to the Dewan within 30 days from the day of sale, and the purchase shall be conditional on the final order in such appeal.

Notifications by the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore.

GENERAL.

NOTIFICATIONS.

The 24th January 1888.

No. 165.—Under the provisions of Section 55, Clause (g) of the Excise Act (XXII of 1881), His Highness the Maharaja's Government hereby sanction the introduction of the following rules for the exercise of proper check over consignments of liquor sent from the Government Distillery to wholesale depôts and the disposal of the rahadaris which accompany them:—

1. Every consignment of liquor will be covered by a rahadari in duplicate, the original being left with the cart-man, the duplicate being sent on to the Amildar of the Taluk, where the wholesale depôt is situated, and the counterfoil being retained in the Distillery Office.

2. The cart with liquor and the rahadari must first be taken to the Amildar if the depôt is situated at Taluk Head-quarters, or to such other official as the Amildar may delegate if the depôt is in any outlying town in his Taluk.

3. The contents of the rahadari should be compared with the duplicate copy received by the Amildar, as well as with the details painted on the casks, and the seals on the casks examined.

4. The date and hour should then be recorded on the back of the rahadari under the signature and designation of the official appointed by the Amildar for this purpose, and the consignment then passed on to the depôt to be there booked.

5. The rahadari should at once be sent back by the depôt wholesale vendor to the Government official appointed by the Amildar, who should see that the wholesale vendor has noted underneath the Taluk official's endorsement "Contents received and booked" with the date and hour of receipt at the depôt.

6. All the rahadaris thus collected during the month should, on the 1st of the following month, be brought with a "Patti," giving name of depôt, No., date and contents of pass (Gs.—Drs) to the Amildar, who will, after satisfying himself that the instructions given above have been fully complied with, score the rahadari across thus X in red ink from end to end, write the word "Cancelled" across the face of each pass under his seal and signature, and send the patti and the cancelled rahadaris on to the Deputy Commissioner of the District.

7. On receipt of these at the District Office, the contents given on the "patti" should be compared with the abstract account of issues of liquor from the Distillery sent by the Special Assistant Commissioner, Abkari and Excise, monthly to each Deputy Commissioner, and the "patti" and the file of cancelled rahadaris then sent on to the Deputy Commissioner, Bangalore District.

8. As the rahadaris are received at the Bangalore District Office, they will be compared with the detailed accounts rendered for the whole Province by the Special Assistant Commissioner, and retained as vouchers till six months after each contract has been closed, when they may be destroyed.

9. When consignments are received without a rahadari, the liquor should be attached, and the matter at once brought to the notice of the Amildar. If he is satisfied that no fraud exists he may release the liquor on the security of the wholesale vendor, intimating particulars to the Special Assistant Commissioner, Abkari and Excise at Bangalore, who will send a duplicate of the rahadari.

10. If the contents (Gs. and Drs. No. and place) as given in the rahadari do not substantially tally with those noted on the cask, the liquor will be sent on to the depôt with the same precautions which are required to be taken under Rule 9, to be there examined either by the Amildar himself or by any other officer appointed by him; and a report of such examination should be forwarded by the Amildar to the Special Assistant Commissioner.

11. The Deputy Commissioners will give such of the Police officers and Revenue officials drawing Rs. 10 and above as are invested with the powers of Excise officers, under Dewan's Notification No. 68, dated 8th July 1884, to understand that it is their duty to see that liquors or drugs, when taken, are covered by a Government rahadari, and that if they are not so covered, they should hand the parties in possession of such liquors or drugs, over to the nearest Police station for disposal according to law.

The 8th February 1888.

It is hereby notified for public information that the undermentioned jodi village, which has been duly attached in satisfaction of the arrears of revenue due to Government (as shown in the subjoined statement) by the said jodidars, will be sold by public auction at the place and on the date mentioned in the annexed statement. The sale will commence at 11 A. M. on the date specified, and the village will be knocked down to the highest bidder without reserve.

2. Provided that when a village is divided into separate recognized vrittis, the Deputy Commissioner may, at his option, instead of selling the village as a whole, sell each vritti separately.

3. The purchaser will be required to deposit 25 per cent of the purchase money at the time of sale, and where the remainder of the purchase money may not be paid within fifteen days from the day of sale, the money so deposited shall be liable to forfeiture.

4. When such deposit shall not be made, nor the remaining purchase money paid up, the lands shall be resold at the expense and risk of the first purchaser.

5. Persons bidding at the sale may be required to state whether they bid on their own account or as agents, and in the latter case to deposit a written authority signed by their principals, otherwise their bids may be rejected.

6. The sale shall be stayed, if the defaulter or any other person acting on his behalf or claiming an interest in the land tenders the full amount of the arrears of the revenue with the interest and other charges, provided such tender be made before sunset on the day previous to that appointed for the sale.

7. The sale of the property will not become absolute until the sale has been confirmed by the Dewan.

8. Purchasers having completed the payment of the purchase money will, as soon as the sale has been confirmed by the Dewan, be placed in immediate possession and the village will be registered in the name of the purchaser, and a certificate of sale signed and sealed by the Deputy Commissioner will be granted to him. It is to be distinctly understood that the Government are not responsible for errors of description and in estimated extent.

9. Provided parties deeming themselves aggrieved by the sale shall be at liberty to appeal to the Dewan within 30 days from the day of sale, and the purchase shall be conditional on the final order in such appeal.

No. 2.—The following letter is published for general information :—

From the Consul-General for Turkey at Bombay, To His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor-General of India, No. 108 G. I.—20-SI, dated Bombay, the 31st January 1888.

With due deference, I beg to lay before your Excellency that since my arrival in India and taking over charge of this Consulate, several times I was informed that forged letters of recommendations, bearing the seal of this Consulate and that of the Turkish Consul-General for the time being, were being presented to the Nawabs and other notables of India by certain individuals with a view to obtain pecuniary assistance from them.

Lately a case of my own private seal being forged, having been brought to my knowledge, I had addressed a letter (locally) to His Highness the Nawab of Rampur, asking him to send me the letter for examination, and His Highness was pleased to comply with my request. That letter is now with me, and will be returned in due course. It bears the seal of my name, and is addressed to the Minister of Rampur State, and was presented by one Abdulla, bin Mahomed Manee. I am now on the look-out for that man, and if found, will hand him over to the proper authorities to be dealt with according to law.

In the meantime I request your Excellency will also be kind enough to issue instructions to the officials concerned to inform all the Nawabs and the Muhammadan notables of India not to rely on the letters which will be presented to them in my name by any Arab or other person or persons who come to India for purposes of begging, and to take such letters as forged.

By Order,

R. VIJAYENDRA RAO,
Chief Secretary.

(Circular Nos. 41 to 43, dated 6th June 1870, from the Under-Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of Mysore, Public Works Department, to the Superintendents of Divisions.)

"I am desired by the Chief Commissioner to inform you that the space to be left uncultivated below the bunds of tanks and channels has been reduced from 5 yards to 10 feet, and to request that you will issue the necessary orders to prohibit cultivation or the planting of hedges or other obstructions and the removal of the latter where already planted within the limit. When distributing channels run parallel with the bund and close below it, the outer toe of their bunds may be conveniently placed so as to form the line of demarcation, which the ryots are to be forbidden to encroach upon under pain of being fined or otherwise punished."

Rules.

I. In Taluks settled subsequent to the issue of the orders of 6th June 1870, the prohibition of cultivation within 10 feet clear from the base of tank bunds should be strictly enforced. Any individual cases in such Taluks in which survey boundary marks have been placed within the 10 feet margin above referred to, should at once be ascertained by the Deputy Commissioner and reported to the Superintendent of Revenue Survey in view to the necessary rectification being made.

II. In Taluks settled previous to the issue of the orders of 6th June 1870—

(a) all survey boundary marks erected on the tops or slopes of tank bunds should at once be removed. The only exception to this general rule would be in the case of bunds of totally ruined and disused tanks, not likely to be repaired and made useful for irrigation purposes in future,

(b) the boundary marks to be removed from tank bunds under the last preceding clause should be placed clear of the base of the bund, and at such a distance therefrom not exceeding 10 feet as may be absolutely necessary,

(c) the area of an occupied survey number which is resumed by Government by the above alteration of boundary marks should, when under actual cultivation, or when the same has been assessed, be acquired by the payment of reasonable compensation. When such area is included kharab and has not been brought under cultivation, no compensation shall be payable therefor.

No 47.—Mr. G. Raghuratha Rao, General Assistant Commissioner, delivered over, and Mr. Narasimmaiengar, Police Assistant Commissioner, resumed, charge of the Police of the Chitaldroog District, on the forenoon of the 13th instant.

NOTIFICATION BY THE CHIEF COMMISSIONER OF COORG.

No. 55. The 22*nd December* 1887.

Tenders are invited for the exclusive privilege of the manufacture and wholesale vend of arrack in the Province of Coorg for 3 years from the 1st April 1888 to the 31st March 1891, subject to the following conditions :—

1. That the arrack shall be distilled within the Government enclosure at Fraserpet of good palm and sugar-cane jaggory, and that only such quantity of nayi'sela bark shall be used in its manufacture as may be necessary and as shall be fixed by the Commissioner.

2. That the price at which arrack 20 degrees under-proof shall be sold at the wholesale depôts to licensed vendors is fixed at Rs. 4—8—0 per Imperial gallon of 6 quart bottles : the retail vend rate to the public being fixed at annas 1—7 per dram in towns, and annas 1—8 in villages. An allowance of 2 per cent will be granted to the contractor on account of wastage.

3. The rate of still-head duty is fixed by the Officiating Chief Commissioner at Rs. 3—2—5 per Imperial gallon of spirit 20 degrees under-proof. Each tenderer should specify the minimum amount per annum of revenue which he will guarantee to pay to the British Government on account of the aforesaid still-head duty. In the event of a larger quantity of liquor being issued during a month than would be covered by the monthly payment of the guaranteed amount, the excise duty on each gallon so issued in excess shall also be paid by the holder of the license. In those months in which the issue may be less, the holder will be allowed the benefit of what he may have paid in excess of the monthly guaranteed amount, and a general balance will be struck at the close of each year, when the holder of the license will have to pay the duty on the number of gallons issued during the year in excess of the number of gallons, the duty on which may have been covered by the minimum amount guaranteed by him to the Government.

4. The contractor shall pay Rs. 25 per mensem as rent for the use of the Distillery buildings at Fraserpet and shall be bound to take over from the out-going contractors the unexpended stock of arrack, jaggory and bark in the Distillery together with the stills, casks, pots, pumps, buildings, &c., at such valuation as may be fixed by the Commissioner.

5. A deposit of Rs. 1,000 in cash or in Government securities must accompany the tender. The cover should be superscribed with the words "Tender for the exclusive privilege of the manufacture and wholesale vend of arrack in Coorg" and must be sent to the Commissioner of Coorg so as to reach him on or before 12 o'clock (noon) on the 8th February 1888, after which time no tender will be received.

6. The tenders will be opened by the Commissioner at his office at 12 o'clock (noon) on the 9th February 1888 in the presence of the applicants who may be present. The final disposal of the tenders will, however, rest with the Officiating Chief Commissioner of Coorg who reserves to himself full power to reject any or all of the tenders without assigning any reason. The deposits made by the applicants whose tenders are rejected will be returned to them.

7. The applicant or applicants whose tenders are selected by the Commissioner for recommendation to the Chief Commissioner shall be required to deposit at once in cash or in Government securities a sum equal to one-twelfth of the minimum annual revenue guaranteed by him or them, failing which the deposit made with the tender shall be forfeited.

8. The applicant whose tender is finally accepted by the Chief Commissioner shall, within eight days of the acceptance of his tender being communicated to him, deposit with the Commissioner a further sum in cash or in Government securities, to make up with the deposits previously made, a sum equal to one-third of the yearly revenue guaranteed, and shall execute an agreement in the prescribed form on stamp paper binding himself to conform to the prescribed conditions ; and if he fails or refuses to sign the agreement, or to make the deposit required, the deposits already made shall be forfeited to Government and the contract shall be otherwise disposed of.

9. The right of issuing licenses for retail shops and of reducing their number, or altering their locality is retained in the hands of the British Government. It is proposed to reduce their number to 63. A license will, however, on application, be given to the contractors for opening one retail shop at each of the towns of Mercara, Virarajendrapet, Gonikoppal and Ammatti, on the conditions of their paying the ordinary license fee of Rs. 20 per mensem.

10. Intending tenderers are informed that the quantity of arrack 20 degrees under-proof on which still-head duty was paid at Fraserpet from the 1st October 1886 to the 30th September 1887 was 46,247 gallons.

11. Further conditions may be ascertained on application to the Commissioner of Coorg, Mercara.

NOTIFICATION BY THE CHIEF COMMISSIONER OF COORG.

No. 58. The 22nd December 1887.

Tenders are invited for the exclusive privilege of the manufacture and wholesale vend of arrack in the Province of Coorg for 3 years from the 1st April 1888 to the 31st March 1891, subject to the following conditions :—

1. That the arrack shall be distilled within the Government enclosure at Fraserpet of good palm and sugar-cane jaggery, and that only such quantity of myrabolam bark shall be used in its manufacture as may be necessary and as shall be fixed by the Commissioner.

2. That the price at which arrack 20 degrees under-proof shall be sold at the wholesale depôts to licensed vendors is fixed at Rs. 4—8—0 per Imperial gallon of 6 quart bottles; the retail vend rate to the public being fixed at annas 1—7 per dram in towns, and annas 1—8 in villages. An allowance of 2 per cent will be granted to the contractor on account of wastage.

3. The rate of still-head duty is fixed by the Officiating Chief Commissioner at Rs. 3—2—5 per Imperial gallon of spirit 20 degrees under-proof. Each tenderer should specify the minimum amount per annum of revenue which he will guarantee to pay to the British Government on account of the aforesaid still-head duty. In the event of a larger quantity of liquor being issued during a month than would be covered by the monthly payment of the guaranteed amount, the excise duty on each gallon so issued in excess shall be paid by the holder of the license. In those months in which the issue may be less, the holder will be allowed the benefit of what he may have paid in excess of the monthly guaranteed amount, and a final balance will be struck at the close of each year, when the holder of the license will have to pay the duty on the number of gallons issued during the year in excess of the number of gallons, the duty on which may have been covered by the minimum amount guaranteed by him to the Government.

4. The contractor shall pay Rs. 25 per mensem as rent for the use of the Distillery buildings at Fraserpet and shall be bound to take over from the out-going contractors the unexpended stock of arrack, jaggery and bark in the Distillery together with the stills, casks, pots, pumps, buildings, &c., at such valuation as may be fixed by the Commissioner.

5. A deposit of Rs. 1,000 in cash or in Government securities must accompany the tender. The cover should be superscribed with the words "Tender for the exclusive privilege of the manufacture and wholesale vend of arrack in Coorg" and must be sent to the Commissioner of Coorg so as to reach him on or before 12 o'clock (noon) on the 8th February 1888, after which time no tender will be received.

6. The tenders will be opened by the Commissioner at his office at 12 o'clock (noon) on the 9th February 1888 in the presence of the applicants who may be present. The final disposal of the tenders will, however, rest with the Officiating Chief Commissioner of Coorg who reserves to himself full power to reject any or all of the tenders without assigning any reason. The deposits made by the applicants whose tenders are rejected will be returned to them.

7. The applicant or applicants whose tenders are selected by the Commissioner for recommendation to the Chief Commissioner shall be required to deposit at once in cash or in Government securities a sum equal to one-twelfth of the minimum annual revenue guaranteed by him or them, failing which the deposit made with the tender shall be forfeited.

8. The applicant whose tender is finally accepted by the Chief Commissioner shall, within eight days of the acceptance of his tender being communicated to him, deposit with the Commissioner a further sum in cash or in Government securities, to make up with the deposits previously made, a sum equal to one-third of the yearly revenue guaranteed, and shall execute an agreement in the prescribed form on stamp paper binding himself to conform to the prescribed conditions; and if he fails or refuses to sign the agreement, or to make the deposit required, the deposits already made shall be forfeited to Government and the contract shall be otherwise disposed of.

9. The right of issuing licenses for retail shops and of reducing their number, or altering their locality is retained in the hands of the British Government. It is proposed to reduce their number to 63. A license will, however, on application be given to the contractors for opening one retail shop at each of the towns of Mercara, Virajpet, Gonikoppal and Ammatti, on the conditions of their paying the ordinary license fee of Rs. 20 per mensem.

10. Intending tenderers are informed that the quantity of arrack 20 degrees under-proof on which still-head duty was paid at Fraserpet from the 1st October 1886 to the 30th September 1887 was 16,217 gallons.

11. Further conditions may be ascertained on application to the Commissioner of Coorg, Mercara.

Tenders are invited for the exclusive privilege of the manufacture and wholesale vend of arrack in the Province of Coorg for 3 years from the 1st April 1888 to the 31st March 1891, subject to the following conditions :—

1. That the arrack shall be distilled within the Government enclosure at Fraserpet of good palm and sugar-cane jaggory, and that only such quantity of nayibela bark shall be used in its manufacture as may be necessary and as shall be fixed by the Commissioner.

2. That the price at which arrack 20 degrees under-proof shall be sold at the wholesale depôts to licensed vendors is fixed at Rs. 4—8—0 per Imperial gallon of 6 quart bottles : the retail vend rate to the public being fixed at annas 1—7 per dram in towns, and annas 1—8 in villages. An allowance of 2 per cent will be granted to the contractor on account of wastage.

3. The rate of still-head duty is fixed by the Officiating Chief Commissioner at Rs. 3—2—5 per Imperial gallon of spirit 20 degrees under-proof. Each tenderer should specify the minimum amount per annum of revenue which he will guarantee to pay to the British Government on account of the aforesaid still-head duty. In the event of a larger quantity of liquor being issued during a month than would be covered by the monthly payment of the guaranteed amount, the excise duty on each gallon so issued in excess shall also be paid by the holder of the license. In those months in which the issue may be less, the holder will be allowed the benefit of what he may have paid in excess of the monthly guaranteed amount, and a general balance will be struck at the close of each year, when the holder of the license will have to pay the duty on the number of gallons issued during the year in excess of the number of gallons, the duty on which may have been covered by the minimum amount guaranteed by him to the Government.

4. The contractor shall pay Rs. 25 per mensem as rent for the use of the Distillery buildings at Fraserpet and shall be bound to take over from the out-going contractors the unexpended stock of arrack, jaggory and bark in the Distillery together with the stills, casks, pots, pumps, buildings, &c., at such valuation as may be fixed by the Commissioner.

5. A deposit of Rs. 1,000 in cash or in Government securities must accompany the tender. The cover should be superscribed with the words "Tender for the exclusive privilege of the manufacture and wholesale vend of arrack in Coorg" and must be sent to the Commissioner of Coorg so as to reach him on or before 12 o'clock (noon) on the 8th February 1888, after which time no tender will be received.

6. The tenders will be opened by the Commissioner at his office at 12 o'clock (noon) on the 9th February 1888 in the presence of the applicants who may be present. The final disposal of the tenders will, however, rest with the Officiating Chief Commissioner of Coorg who reserves to himself full power to reject any or all of the tenders without assigning any reason. The deposits made by the applicants whose tenders are rejected will be returned to them.

7. The applicant or applicants whose tenders are selected by the Commissioner for recommendation to the Chief Commissioner shall be required to deposit at once in cash or in Government securities a sum equal to one twelfth of the minimum annual revenue guaranteed by him or them, failing which the deposit made with the tender shall be forfeited.

8. The applicant whose tender is finally accepted by the Chief Commissioner shall, within eight days of the acceptance of his tender being communicated to him, deposit with the Commissioner a further sum in cash or in Government securities, to make up with the deposits previously made, a sum equal to one-third of the yearly revenue guaranteed, and shall execute an agreement in the prescribed form on stamp paper binding himself to conform to the prescribed conditions ; and if he fails or refuses to sign the agreement, or to make the deposit required, the deposits already made shall be forfeited to Government and the contract shall be otherwise disposed of.

9. The right of issuing licenses for retail shops and of reducing their number, or altering their locality is retained in the hands of the British Government. It is proposed to reduce their number to 63. A license will, however, on application, be given to the contractors for establishing one retail shop at each of the towns of Mercara, Virarajendrapet, Gonikoppal and Anmatti, on the conditions of their paying the ordinary license fee of Rs. 20 per mensem.

2. All applications to be made to the Deputy Commissioners or Assistant or Sub-Assistant Conservators in charge of the kotis.

3. For the convenience of travellers and others who may not have easy access to the kotis, Amildars will be intrusted with a certain number of small sandalwood billets stamped at both ends with the "sold" stamps with the weight and price marked thereon. The stock with the Amildar will be replenished on the imprest system. The Amildar should give intimation of sales to the Forest officer for the necessary entry in the accounts.

4. No applications for quantities exceeding one ton will be entertained.

5. Terms for all retail sales will be cash and immediate removal.

6. These reduced retail rates have been fixed for the convenience of the public who may wish to purchase small quantities of sandalwood for their domestic use and for affording facilities for obtaining sandalwood for carving, for samples and for similar purposes. Whenever therefore a District Forest officer has reason to believe that the retail rates are being utilized for speculative purposes, he should stop such retail sales at once, reporting the same for the information of the Inspector General of Forests through the Deputy Commissioner of the District.

VII. Letter from the Superintending Engineer with report, plans and estimates for constructing a dam across the valley below Sankey's Reservoir and laying pipes for distributing water in the town.

Resolution.—The scheme now before the Board to supply the Town with perfectly pure water is a highly desirable one, and it has been fully investigated by the Government professional officers. Two alternative estimates are submitted, one for providing stoneware pipes, and the other cast-iron pipes. After discussing the subject fully and also after hearing the explanation kindly afforded by Mr. Sealdwell at the meeting on the subject, the Board have come to the conclusion to adopt the estimate for laying iron pipes, which is estimated to cost Rs. 94,056. They therefore resolve that Government be respectfully requested to direct the work to be carried out by the Public Works Department from Provincial Funds and thereby confer a lasting boon on the inhabitants of this rapidly increasing town. If this proposal should not meet with the approval of Government, then the Commissioners would solicit the Government for a loan of Rs. 84,000 without interest to be repaid by annual instalments.

NOTIFICATION BY THE CHIEF COMMISSIONER OF COORG.

No. 58. The 22nd December 1887.

Tenders are invited for the exclusive privilege of the manufacture and wholesale vend of arrack in the Province of Coorg for 3 years from the 1st April 1888 to the 31st March 1891, subject to the following conditions :—

1. That the arrack shall be distilled within the Government enclosure at Fraserpet of good palm and sugar-cane jaggery, and that only such quantity of kayphela bark shall be used in its manufacture as may be necessary and as shall be fixed by the Commissioner.

2. That the price at which arrack 20 degrees under-proof shall be sold at the wholesale depôts to licensed vendors is fixed at Rs. 4—8—0 per Imperial gallon of 6 quart bottles : the retail vend rate to the public being fixed at annas 1—7 per dram in towns, and annas 1—8 in villages. An allowance of 2 per cent will be granted to the contractor on account of wastage.

3. The rate of still-head duty is fixed by the Officiating Chief Commissioner at Rs. 3—2—5 per Imperial gallon of spirit 20 degrees under-proof. Each tenderer should specify the minimum amount per annum of revenue which he will guarantee to pay to the British Government on account of the aforesaid still-head duty. In the event of a larger quantity of liquor being issued during a month than would be covered by the monthly payment of the guaranteed amount, the excise duty on each gallon so issued in excess shall also be paid by the holder of the license. In those months in which the issue may be less, the holder will be allowed the benefit of what he may have paid in excess of the monthly guaranteed amount, and a general balance will be struck at the close of each year, when the holder of the license will have to pay the duty on the number of gallons issued during the year in excess of the number of gallons, the duty on which may have been covered by the minimum amount guaranteed by him to the Government.

4. The contractor shall pay Rs. 25 per mensem as rent for the use of the Distillery buildings at Fraserpet and shall be bound to take over from the out-going contractors the unexpended stock of arrack, jaggery and bark in the Distillery together with the stills, casks, pots, pumps, buildings, &c., at such valuation as may be fixed by the Commissioner.

5. A deposit of Rs. 1,000 in cash or in Government securities must accompany the tender. The cover should be superscribed with the words "Tender for the exclusive privilege of the manufacture and wholesale vend of arrack in Coorg" and must be sent to the Commissioner of Coorg so as to reach him on or before 12 o'clock (noon) on the 8th February 1888, after which time no tender will be received.

6. The tenders will be opened by the Commissioner at his office at 12 o'clock (noon) on the 9th February 1888 in the presence of the applicants who may be present. The final disposal of the tenders will, however, rest with the Officiating Chief Commissioner of Coorg who reserves to himself full power to reject any or all of the tenders without assigning any reason. The deposits made by the applicants whose tenders are rejected will be returned to them.

7. The applicant or applicants whose tenders are selected by the Commissioner for recommendation to the Chief Commissioner shall be required to deposit at once in cash or in Government securities a sum equal to one-twelfth of the minimum annual revenue guaranteed by him or them, failing which the deposit made with the tender shall be forfeited.

8. The applicant whose tender is finally accepted by the Chief Commissioner shall, within eight days of the acceptance of his tender being communicated to him, deposit with the Commissioner a further sum in cash or in Government securities, to make up with the deposits previously made, a sum equal to one-third of the yearly revenue guaranteed, and shall execute an agreement in the prescribed form on stamp paper binding himself to conform to the prescribed conditions ; and if he fails or refuses to sign the agreement, or to make the deposit required, the deposits already made shall be forfeited to Government and the contract shall be otherwise disposed of.

9. The right of issuing licenses for retail shops and of reducing their number, or altering their locality is retained in the hands of the British Government. It is proposed to reduce their number to 63. A license will, however, on application, be given to the contractors for opening one retail shop at each of the towns of Mercara, Virarajendrapet, Gonikoppal and Ammatti, on the conditions of their paying the ordinary license fee of Rs. 20 per mensem.

10. Intending tenderers are informed that the quantity of arrack 20 degrees under-proof on which still-head duty was paid at Fraserpet from the 1st October 1886 to the 30th September 1887 was 46,247 gallons.

1. Accounts for December showing—

Receipts	.. 4,463—5—3	Expenditure	.. 6,519—1—10

were read and passed, with the remark that the difference in the receipts from octroi in December 1887 and December 1886 needed explanation. (Note.—The Vice-President will prepare a memorandum and circulate it).

2. Read letter No. 1176, dated 26th November 1887, from the Military Secretary, desiring that the land between the road to Railway Station and the Jivanayakatte, (opposite the Siladars' Lines) may be placed at the disposal of the Military Department, &c.

Resolved that the grant of the ground for the purposes specified is objectionable, alike on considerations of sanitation and public convenience. The present use of the ground by the Siladars is itself under objection, and the Board contemplate a representation to the Military Secretary against its present use by the Siladars which has formed the subject of complaint.

3. Read Chief Secretary's Docket No. 5682—553, dated 24th December 1887, regarding the pay of Assistant Surgeon Miss. Gardial Singh.

Resolved that the Chief Secretary be informed in reply that the Board fully recognize the necessity for the appointment of a Lady Doctor and that they would willingly bear the extra cost of Rs. 100 which it is suggested the Board should contribute; but in the present financial condition of the Municipality, the Board are unable to bear the charge of Rs. 100 per mensem, and req[illegible] that Government may be pleased to bear half of this amount of Rs. 100, the Municipality bear[illegible] the other half. When the Municipal Act is passed and Municipal resources developed, the financia[illegible]tion of the Municipality would be better than it is now.

4. A re-appropriation of budget grants and transfer of savings from budget heads to clearing Dodkere and Karanji tank feeders, &c., was sanctioned.

5. Resolved that it is premature to consider a proposal to shift the Vinayaka temple at the northern entrance of the fort.

6. Read application from the Stage Manager Subba Rao, Chamarajendra Karnataka Natka Sabha, regarding the rent fixed for use of the Rangacharlu's Memorial Hall on performance nights.

Resolved that the matter has already been disposed of, and there is no reason to reconsider it.

7. The question of filling up the places of the two non-official members who never attend Municipal Board's meetings was deferred to next meeting for want of time.

8. Letter No. 363, dated 20th December 1887, from the Superintending Engineer of Mysore, was next read, regarding the location of the front block of the design of the proposed new market at Mysore and the preparedness of the Municipality to re-model and re-construct the rear stalls if Government bear the cost of the front row of buildings as desired. Mr. Standish Lee, the Sanitary Engineer, Mysore Special Improvements Division, was present and kindly explained the details of the scheme. The m[illegible]bers adjourned to the site of the new market and considered the question on the spot.

Resolved that the Superintending Engineer be written to in reply to say that if the Government consent to bear the cost of the proposed front rows of buildings, the Municipality will be prepared to bear the cost of re-constructing and re-modelling the rear stalls, and that they would prefer the frontage being located as proposed by Mr. Lee, so that the distance between it and the Dufferin Fountain may be equal to the distance between the latter and the existing street houses opposite and that this will trench seriously on the road to the Hospital, need not be an objection, because the road can be widened and straightened and the Sivarampete corner rounded off, in pursuance of a long cherished intention. The Board consider symmetry and space round the Dufferin Fountain a great factor in the determination of the position of the market frontage.

POSTAL NOTICE.

It has already been intimated that on and after the 20th February 1888 Mails from Europe will be due to arrive in Bombay on Monday of each week instead of on Tuesday as at present: and the public are now hereby informed that arrangements have been made for a corresponding change in the day of sailing from Madras of the weekly steamers for the Northern Ports and Rangoon, under which the steamers will, after the despatch on Thursday the 16th February 1888, leave Madras on Wednesday of each week, the first Wednesday despatch for the Northern Ports being made on the 22nd February 1888. This will expedite the conveyance of the Foreign Mail to the Northern Ports.

2. Hitherto there has been only a fortnightly mail service between the Madras Presidency and Burmah in each direction by means of these steamers, although a weekly service is maintained between Madras and the Northern Ports on the Coromandel Coast. Arrangements have now been made for introducing a weekly mail service between the Madras Presidency and Burmah, each steamer in both directions being utilized for the conveyance of mails. Henceforth in accordance with this arrangement mails for Rangoon and other offices in Burmah will be despatched from Madras by each weekly steamer. The last Thursday despatch will, as intimated above, be made on Thursday the 16th February 1888, after which date the mails will leave Madras on Wednesday of each week, commencing from Wednesday the 22nd idem.

3. This change from Thursday to Wednesday in the day of departure from Madras will advance the steamer sailings by one day throughout the voyage so that the return steamers will reach Madras one day earlier than at present, i. e. on Wednesday of each week instead of on Thursday.

1. Read again Resolution 3 of the proceedings of the Municipal Board meeting convened on the 29th November 1887, in which they had proposed the further discussion of the project for the construction of a drain from the Dandina Agasara Keri and Dchangidurgada Bedar Keri until they should have had the benefit of a personal conference with the President.

The President explained that the proposed drain had nothing to do with the general drainage scheme. What was urgently wanted was to adopt some means for removing the damp in the houses in this quarter of the town, which had been found to be the main cause of the sickness prevailing among the people living there. The Vice-President explained that traces of an old drain were to be found and that the President's scheme to lead the drain into the fort ditch near Hanumantaraya's temple was perfectly practicable. After some further discussion regarding the great benefit likely to accrue to the people from carrying out this project, the meeting unanimously resolved that the project in question be passed and the work be undertaken along with those passed at the last meeting, as soon as possible, in anticipation of Government sanction.

2. Read accounts of receipts and expenditures for the month of November 1887.

It is observed that the realizations under Octroi amounted to Rs. 140—9—11 in the month as contrasted with Rs. 316—14—8 in November 1886, showing a decrease of Rs. 176—14—9, which is attributed to the falling off in imports on account of the existence of cholera in Shimoga.

The expenditures of the month show an increase of Rs. 713—10—5 as compared with the amount charged in November 1886, mainly on account of the work of metalling of Petta street and Kollurayanakeri street now under progress.

Resolved that the accounts be passed.

1. Read accounts of receipts and expenditure for the month of October 1887, an abstract of which is appended below :—

Receipts.

No.	Description.	For October 1886.			For October 1887.			Decrease.			Increase.
1	Octroi	537	9	4	245	11	11	291	13	5	..	..	..

For October 1886.			For October 1887.			Decrease.			Increase.
896	0	0	1,635	5	10	..	..	..	739	5	10

When the receipts are compared with the accounts of this month of last year, there is a falling off of Rs. 250—11—1 in piece goods and Rs. 41—2—5 in miscellaneous articles under the head octroi. This is accounted for by the infrequency of imports of those articles owing to the prevalence of cholera in Shimoga.

Resolved that the accounts be passed.

2. Read the following papers regarding sanitary measures adopted and to be adopted to put down cholera in Shimoga :—

A. Proceedings of the Special Meeting held on the 29th September 1887.
B. Dewan's order No. 1418—19, dated 8th October 1887.
C. President's letter No. 479—447 of 10th November 1887.
D. Dewan's order No. 1845—47 of 19th November 1887.
E. Statement showing the amount expended from 29th September 1887, about which date cholera made its appearance, down to 29th November 1887 and that required for further expenditure.

	Rs.	A.	P.
The total amount sanctioned as per Dewan's orders marked B and D is as per margin ..	1,206	0	0
The total of the amount actually expended up to date is Rs. 734 12 11 } Do the estimated amount required for further expenditure is .. .. Rs. 1,766 0 0 }	2,500	12	11
Excess	1,294	12	11

Cholera has not up to date quite left Shimoga. The Municipality is putting forth its best energies to stamp it out, but even now one or two cases are reported daily. It is therefore absolutely necessary that the improvements already begun should be completed, and the extra establishment maintained for purposes of sanitation continued for some time. It is resolved therefore that the Government be requested to accord their sanction for the expenditure of the excess sum of Rs. 1,294—12—11 as shown above.

Resolved also that a detailed bill showing the actual cost incurred be submitted to Government after cholera has disappeared as directed in Dewan's Proceedings No. 1418—19, dated 8th October 1887.

3. Read President's Inspection Memo of 23rd November 1887 and the Vice-President's lists marked F and G, showing the estimated cost of works mentioned below to be executed for further improving the sanitation of the town as suggested by the President :—

		Rs.	A.	P.
F.	(1.) Opening new roads in Dandin Agasar street and Uchangi Bedar street.	300	0	0
	(2.) Compensation for houses that will have to go when these roads are opened	900	0	0
	(3.) Opening out a drain from the heart of this quarter of the town and leading it to the trench near Hanumanta Devaru Temple ..	800	0	0
G.	Opening out roads in Kumbargundi viz.—
	(1.) Through the backyards of the houses along the main bazaar (from Upper street to big Brahmin street) excluding the compensation of houses	1,000	0	0
	(2.) Extending the existing road in front of Kumbargundi Matt and connecting the same with the main bazaar near Kotwal Katte together with the construction of a tunnel in Kumbargundi, excluding compensation for houses	1,500	0	0

Regarding the improvements mentioned in list F the President remarks as follows in his Inspection Notes, dated 23rd November 1887 :—

"Went to Dandina Agasara Keri and Uchangi Bedar Keri. These were about the worst slums in "the whole of Shimoga. In spite of all that has been done for improving the sanitation of the town "and particularly for these clusters of houses they continue as bad as ever. The houses, rather huts, "here are crowded together and being built in the bed of an old tank, the floors are damp throughout "the year. There are here and there stagnant pools of water which, there appears to be no way of filling "up or draining. This quarter is inhabited, as might be expected, by the very poorest classes and we "cannot look to them to carry out any improvements. Cholera was most severe and persistent in this "part of the town and there is no wonder that it was so. I have explained to the Vice-President my "idea about draining this quarter. A big drain must be taken from the heart of this Keri and led into "the trench near the temple of Hanumantaraya. I would advice this being taken in hand at once "without waiting for the larger drainage scheme."

"Two cross cuts must be made through this quarter and two streets at least 10 feet wide opened "out to let in air and light into it and also to allow carts to pass freely. The houses that will have "to go may be rebuilt in Clarke pettah or elsewhere. This is the season for building and I would ask "this matter also be taken in hand at once."

The Board quite agree as to the urgent necessity for the improvements suggested, but as the construction of the drain would require professional skill, they resolve to postpone the further discussion of this project until they have had the benefit of a conference with the President.

Regarding the improvements referred to in list G, these are two roads proposed to be opened in the Kumbargundi.

The Board are fully alive to the pressing necessity of the improvements suggested by the President in the Kumbargundi. They have themselves entered into the question in detail in their Proceedings of the 30th December 1886, para 9 and in many proceedings held both before and after the proceedings above referred to. Pending the final solution of the larger project above referred to, they resolve that the opening of the roads now suggested are absolutely necessary to ensure the safety and health of the town, and that the works in list be carried out.

The Board wish to note that the roads now resolved to be opened will be in furtherance of the Kumbargundi scheme.

4. The charge of Rs. 6,400—12—11 mentioned in paras 2 and 3 can be met from the general savings of previous years, viz. Rs. 14,380—13—10 on 1st April 1887.

Deducting Rs. 4,000 recommended for sanction in para 9 of the Board Proceedings of 19th July last for urgent works not provided for in this year's Budget and the sum of Rs. 6,400—12—11 now required, there remains a balance of Rs. 3,980—0—11.

Out of the previous years' balance, a sum of Rs. 10,000 was reserved for the town drainage scheme and the Kumbargundi project as mentioned in the Proceedings particularized in the margin. But convict labor which was getting less every year has failed us entirely at this critical time and every thing has had to be done by paid labor, and considering how grievous has been the loss of life both from fever last year and from cholera this year and how remote the chance of the larger drainage project being taken up they have no hesitation in applying to be allowed to indent on the savings to enable them to carry out such improvements as are urgently required to place the sanitation of the town on a satisfactory footing.

1. Dated 6th August 1886, para 12.
2. " 8th December 1886 " 2.
3. " 30th " " 9.
4. " 19th July 1887 " 9.

Resolved that the Government be requested to kindly accord their sanction to draw the above sum of Rs. 6,400—12—11 out of the previous years' balance.

II. Budget estimates of receipts and expenditure for the official year 1888—89.

Resolution.—The Board in passing the Budget as now amended observe that while the expenditure has been increasing every year, the income of the Municipality is almost stationary. To secure an equilibrium the Commissioners resolve that an application be made to Government for sanction to introduce the following additional taxes :—

1. Professional tax on those whom the existing Mohatarfa Rules do not touch at present.

2. Tax on piece-goods imported into the Town, at the same rates as those now prevailing in the Mysore Town.

3. Tax on kerosine oil at the rate of 2 annas per tin imported.

Adverting to the item (i) in the column of expenditure, viz., contribution to Girdlestone ward for incurable paupers, the Commissioners further resolved that owing to the large increase, in the Town, of the number of paupers requiring medical relief, and also in consideration of the inconvenience practically experienced in sending them to the Girdlestone ward on account of the distance and other causes, a separate ward be established in the Town as soon as practicable in connection with the Langarkhana; and that the monthly contribution now made to the Girdlestone ward be discontinued with the sanction of the Government after giving the Managing Committee of that Institution 3 months' notice.

A. SRINIVASACHARLU, B. A.,
Vice-President.

CIVIL LEAVE CODE.

APPENDIX A.

Substitute the following for clause (13) of the Form of Last-Pay Certificate on this page :—

(13) The Secretary of State recovers subscriptions on account of the different Civil Funds from subscribers absent from India on leave who draw their leave allowances in England who either are required by the Rules of their Fund to pay their subscriptions in that country during leave, or elect to do so. Particulars of the Fund deductions to be made from the absentee allowances of officers on leave drawing their leave allowances in England should be noted on the Last-Pay Certificates; and where a subscriber elects to make payments of his subscriptions in India while on leave, or to postpone such payment until his return to India, the fact should also be noted on the Last-Pay Certificate. The rules under which the deductions are made, and the method by which they are calculated in the cases of the different Funds, will be found in Appendix B (a) of the Civil Leave Code.

Insert the following as Appendix B (a) of the Civil Leave Code:

The recovery of subscriptions due on the absentee allowances of subscribers to the Bengal, Madras, and Bombay Civil Funds, and to the Indian Civil Service Family Pension Fund, is made under the following Rules:—

1. If the officer is on leave out of India and draws his allowances in England, recovery will be made at the Home Treasury by deductions from his absentee allowances, unless he is a member of the Bengal or Madras Civil Fund, and has exercised the option allowed to members of those Funds of postponing the payment of his subscriptions until after return to duty.

[NOTE.—The option allowed to subscribers to the Bengal Fund of postponing payment of subscriptions on absentee allowances is limited to a period of one year.]

2. For payment of leave allowances in any of Her Majesty's Colonies, warrants will be issued only on condition that the subscriptions shall be either paid in advance or taken by deduction; in the latter case, the warrant to the Colony should show only the net allowance payable after such deduction.

3. The rates of subscription are as follow :—

A.—Bengal Civil Fund.

		R.	a.
	Civil Fund ordinary ..	2	8	per centum of the total leave allowance.
Additional.	Wife	2	0	,,	ditto	ditto
	Sons, each	0	2	,,	ditto	ditto
	Daughters, each ..	0	4	,,	ditto	ditto

Widower's subscriptions are the subscription to the ordinary branch and double rates for children. The subscriptions should be calculated on the rupee entry of the absentee allowance in the officer's Last-Pay Certificate; but in no case is subscription calculated on a smaller leave allowance than Rs. 416—10—8, or on a higher allowance than Rs. 833—5—4 a month. Payments made in England are converted into sterling at the rate of 2 shillings the rupee. If the officer is entitled to no absentee allowance, his contributions should be calculated as if he were in receipt of the subsistence allowance noted below :—

Rs. 250 a month—for an officer of not more than eight years' actual residence in India.
Rs. 320 a month—for an officer of more than eight but less than twelve years' actual residence in India.
Rs. 400 a month—for an officer of twelve or more years' actual residence in India.

B.—Madras Civil Fund.

During the first sixteen years' service in all cases .. .. .. Rs. 2¼ per cent.

At the same rate during the whole further service in the case of married men or widowers with families. In the case of unmarried subscribers and widowers without families, the rate is reduced to one per cent after sixteen years' service, to be raised to the higher rate of 2¼ per cent on the remarriage of the subscriber.

The subscriptions to be paid on absentee allowance are reckoned on the rupee entry in the Last-Pay Certificate; but in no case is subscription calculated on a smaller leave allowance than Rs. 416—10—8, or on a higher leave allowance than Rs. 833⅓.

In the cases of subscribers in England who are not in receipt of any absentee allowances, and who are allowed by the Rules of the Fund to make payments in order to retain their interest in the Fund, the allowance on which the rates are calculated is the allowance from Government last drawn when on furlough or sick leave.

Payments made in England are converted into sterling at the rate of two shillings or one shilling and nine pence the rupee, according as the subscription is paid to the 8 per cent or 4 per cent Capital of the Fund.

C.—Bombay Civil Fund.

	Rs.
Married members	3 per cent.
Widowers or unmarried members ..	2 ,,

For daughters (if upon the Fund)—2 annas or 4 annas per cent.
For sons (if upon the Fund)—2 annas per cent.

A member on furlough and in receipt of an absentee allowance exceeding £500 a year contributes at the rates shown above on the amount in excess of £500 a year. Any member drawing no allowance or drawing furlough or subsistence allowance of £500 a year or less, is not required to contribute.

Payments of subscriptions in England are converted into sterling money at the rate of exchange annually fixed for the adjustment of financial transactions between the Imperial and Indian Governments.

D.—Indian Civil Service Family Pension Regulations.

(These rates show the monthly contribution and are subject to alteration from time to time, by the Secretary of State.)

The meeting observe that the receipts from Octroi in the three months of the current official year amount only to Rs. 954—7—1 as contrasted with Rs. 1,743—12—1½ for the same months of the past year, showing a decrease of Rs. 809—5—½ as shown in the margin. Resolution.—The accounts be passed. The collection has not been satisfactory. It may be noted that the large falling off in December was due to the prevalence of cholera during that month.

3. With reference to another proposal of the Civil Surgeon to have certain improvements made in the slaughter house, he will be written to to furnish the Board with details of the work to be done, with a view to enable the Vice-President to ascertain the probable cost thereof from the Executive Engineer.

4. Read docket No. 29, dated 13th January 1888, from the Civil Surgeon, requesting a sum of Rs. 50 for carrying on animal vaccination.

The Board regret their inability to sanction the grant owing to want of funds.

5. Read docket No. 567, dated 27th December 1887, from the Civil Surgeon, requesting that certain appliances, &c., may be supplied to the Municipal Midwife, as it is very necessary that they should be with her when she attends labor cases, and also that a sign board may be posted at the residence of the Midwife.

Resolved that Rs. 15 be sanctioned for the purchase of the appliances, &c., as particularized below :—

6. Read letter, dated 27th January 1888, from Messrs. Jeeyer and Co., Madras, furnishing a sketch and price list of a chamber dust box.

The Meeting approve of the sketch and price list of the chamber dust box and resolve that such a number of the same as are needed at present be obtained from the Firm without delay, the cost being met from the provision already made on this account.

7. Read docket No. 137, dated 11th ultimo, from the Executive Engineer, Shimoga Division, stating that Rs. 250 would be a fair remuneration to be paid to one P. S. Ramaiengar for surveying and taking levels of the Town of Shimoga. This question has been long before the Board. This work was necessary to enable the Board to deal satisfactorily with the drainage of the town. In 1885—86, a provision of Rs. 500 was made for this purpose in the Budget. (Vide Resolution 5 of the Board Proceedings, dated 11th January 1885) and sanctioned by the Dewan. No competent hand could be had and the amount had lapsed in consequence. About June last, the President was able to secure the services of a Sub-Surveyor of the Indian Topographical Survey Department, who has done the work satisfactory.

The Meeting unanimously agreed to the payment of Rs. 250—0—0 to P. S. Ramaiengar and pass the contingent charges of Rs. 78—2—8 incurred on account of pay of flag bearers, &c., as detailed in the Amildar's Bills No. 336, dated 11th January 1888.

Also resolved that both the items be met from the savings of the current year's Budget grant.

8. Read Budget estimates of Receipts and Expenditure of the Municipal Funds for the financial year 1888—89, and after carefully going through the particulars therein mentioned, the Board resolve to adopt the figures as per following abstract :—

From the above it will be seen that the Board have been unable to reserve 1/4th of the estimated gross receipts as a closing balance as remarked in the latter part of para 6 of the Dewan's Proceedings No. 3588 93—71, dated 5th July 1886. The cost of establishment and the estimated cost of the works selected out of several emergent and important ones, amount to Rs. 21,903, which deducted from the income including previous balance (Rs. 2,985) leaves only Rs. 82—0—0. The small increase proposed in the conservancy establishment cannot be dispensed with in the present unhealthy condition of the town. The works that have been proposed are only a few out of those emergently needed to improve the sanitation of the town and the condition of the roads. The Board apprehend that unless the Government issue early orders as regards the following items of revenue being made over to the Municipality, they will find it impossible to discharge the trust and duties devolving upon them efficiently and with satisfaction either to themselves or to Government.

1st. Relieving the Municipality of the Town Police charges. (Vide Resolution 13 of the Board Proceedings, dated 13th August 1886).

2nd. Transfer to the Municipality of the realizations from the retail license fees of both country and Europe liquor shops. (Vide Resolution 3 of the Board Proceedings of 30th December 1886).

3rd. Transfer of revenue from lands within the Municipal limits. (Vide Resolution 4 of the Board Proceedings dated 30th December 1886).

The above named items however will only afford a partial relief. The Board would therefore take the liberty to re-urge the question of their being enabled to improve their income by levying tolls on carts and animals coming into the town. The estimate given in Resolution 5 of the Proceedings of 30th December 1886 was based upon figures for only 3 months. Since then complete registers have been kept of carts and animals coming into the town on all the roads. Details of the information collected are given in the statement appended.

It will be seen that for the 12 months from 1st February 1887 to 31st January 1888, income from tolls is calculated at Rs. 10,646—3—0; making allowance for errors, the anticipated income may safely be put down at Rs. 8,000. This, with the octroi on piece goods, will give the Municipality an income of Rs. 11,000 in the place of Rs. 4,970 now levied under Octroi. The benefits likely to accrue to trade from the abolition of the petty and vexatious octroi duties on a variety of articles have already been referred in the Proceedings of 30th December 1886.

9. Read estimates and plans for the following works:—

1.	For constructing a tunnel in the Park new road	Rs. 301	0	0
2.	For constructing a waste weir to the tank in the Park	„ 217	0	0
3.	For constructing flight of steps to the tank in the Park ..	„ 166	0	0

Resolved that the works be executed by the close of this official year, the cost being met out of savings under Khalibat establishment in the current year's budget.

10. It was brought to the notice of the Board that certain persons are allowed to permanently occupy some stalls in the market and they do not keep their places clean.

Resolved that no one be allowed to inhabit any stall permanently and that the present occupants be removed at once. The stalls to continue to be sold in auction each year, on condition of shops being held in them and that under no circumstances, they would be converted into dwelling places.

11. The Budget estimates dealt with in Resolution 8 above include reprovision for certain * works or portions of works specially sanctioned, but which could not be completed in 1887—88, owing, in the case of the well, to its being full of water until very recently, and, in the case of metalling roads, the prevalence of cholera at the time best suited for that work. The other works were proposed and taken up rather late in the year. The works referred to are as given below :—

Considering the great prevalence of small-pox in the Town and elsewhere in the Tumkur Taluk, the Board resolve to request the Assistant Surgeon to follow the usual practice of sending the vaccinator round the Town and to discontinue the practice of assembling the children in the Hospital as the people have great prejudices to go to or send their children to the Hospital. It is also suggested that, to prevent the deterioration of the lymph by being kept in a glass tube, the lymph may be extracted in the morning and taken about for use that day. The Amildar should be requested to help the work of vaccination by arranging for the supply of calves at the rate of one per month, the required amount of conpensation to the calf-owners being paid out of the Municipal and Local funds set apart for that purpose. The Commissioners also should avail themselves of every opportunity to explain to the people the benefits resulting from vaccination and to persuade them to bring their children to be vaccinated.

III. Read the estimates for the digging of a well in Kurubarbidi, Horapet A Division.

Resolved.—That it may be submitted to the Government for sanction, as the increasing of water supply in that part is very necessary.

IV. Read the Chief Secretary's letter regarding the transfer of the garden in Dobbs' Bungalow to the Municipality.

Resolved that it be represented that the garden is too far away from the Town beyond the limits of the Municipality to be utilized for any purposes of enjoyment, and as it is not likely that it will be a paying concern, the Municipality is not inclined to take it up. The garden is a part of the grounds of the Bungalow set apart for the use of His Highness the Maharaja, and it is best kept up by Government.

V. Read the revised estimates and draft letter to the Chief Secretary regarding the construction of a Vegetable Market in the Tumkur Town.

Resolved that they be approved and submitted to the Dewan for early sanction.

VI. Read the Dewan's order sanctioning the acquisition of the building sites and the proposals of the President for distributing the sites, &c.

Resolved that the proposals may be approved and that to carry out the arrangements in connection with them, a sub-committee of the following members may be appointed :—

1. Mr. Pancharatha Rao.
2. „ Hema Hanumantaiya.
3. „ Dalal.

No. 2832.
PAY AND ACTING ALLOWANCE CODE.
Pages 280—292.
SECTIONS 45 TO 47.

Substitute the following for these Sections :

45. In the case of progressive appointments, acting allowances are fixed as follows
(a) An officer whose substantive pay is progressive, and who acts in an office of which the pay is fixed.
In this case the officer's acting allowances will be calculated as if his substantive pay were a fixed one, equal to the amount at which from time to time it stands.
(b) An officer whose substantive pay is fixed, and who acts in an office of which the pay is progressive.
In this case the officer's acting allowance will be calculated upon the pay to which he would from time to time have risen if he had held the officiating appointment substantively.
(c) An officer whose substantive pay is progressive, and who acts in an office of which the pay is progressive.

In this case the officer will draw

(1) His substantive pay, with the increments thereof as they fall due.
(2) The acting allowance which he would have drawn if the substantive and officiating appointments were both on fixed pay equal to the minimum : provided that the maximum limit of salary shall be not the said minimum pay of the officiating appointment, but the pay to which the officer would have risen if his officiating tenure had been substantive.

Example (a).—An officer who is substantively in the Rs. 170 stage of an appointment of Rs. 150—10—200 is appointed to act in an office of which the pay is Rs. 200—8—240. His salary is thus fixed—

	Rs.
Pay	170
Acting allowance, ⅕ of Rs. 200	40
Total ..	210

But this is limited the first year to Rs. 200.
Next year he gets pay Rs. 180 + acting allowance Rs. 40,—total Rs. 220. But this is limited for a year to Rs. 208.

Example (b).—A Covenanted Civil Servant, substantively in the Rs. 1,200 stage of an appointment of which the pay is Rs. 1,000—50—1,250 acts in an appointment of Rs. 1,500—50—1,750. His salary is—

		Rs.
Pay	..	1,200
Acting allowance, ⅓ (Rs. 1,500—1,000)	..	333⅓
Total	..	1,533⅓

Limited the first year to Rs. 1,500.
In future years he receives—

		Rs.
Second year—
Pay		1,250
Acting allowance		333⅓
Total	.	1,583⅓

Limited to Rs. 1,550.
In future years he gets Rs. 1,583⅓, which is the limit of salary in this case.
NOTE.—In calculating the salary of an officer in an acting appointment, the whole of the acting tenure, whether continuous or not, is taken into account.

46. If an officer is appointed substantively to a progressive appointment in which he has already officiated, his pay is fixed as follows:

(1) If the salary which he drew when last officiating is equal to one of the stages of the pay of the appointment, his pay shall be fixed at that stage, and he shall count in that stage the time during which he has been drawing the said salary.

(2) If the salary which he drew when last officiating is intermediate between two stages, his pay shall be fixed at that amount for half the period during which an increment is earned, and on the first day of the month thereafter succeeding he shall be eligible to the next higher stage of the progressive pay.

Example.—An officer is on 20th June substantively appointed to an appointment of which the pay is Rs. 200—10—250, and in which he is already officiating—

(a) If his salary at the time of his appointment and from 1st March last has been Rs. 220, he continues to draw Rs. 220, and on 1st March next rises to Rs. 230.

(b) If his salary at time of appointment is Rs. 225, he will draw Rs. 225 till 1st January, and then will get Rs. 230.

47. An officer transferred substantively to a progressive appointment from an appointment in which he is drawing pay in excess of the minimum pay of the new appointment will, if the transfer is made by an authority to which both appointments are subordinate, or if the transfer is declared by the Local Government or by a Department of the Government of India to have been made for special reasons and in the interests of the public service, draw the nearest stage, or, if two stages are equally near, then the next higher stage of pay in the new appointment, but will count time for increments as if he had commenced on the minimum pay.

47A. Except as provided in Sections 46 and 47, an officer appointed substantively to an office of which the pay is progressive will begin with the minimum pay.

Offg. Secretary to the Government of India.

3. An estimate for Magadi-Huliyurdurga road for Rs. 10,000 will shortly be sanctioned in the vicinity. If a good and energetic contractor takes up these tank works, he will have a chance to take up the road also.

4. Tenders should be submitted on printed forms which may be obtained from the Executive Engineer. The tenders should be accompanied by a statement in the form given below, showing the rates at which the different items specified will be executed.

5. Each tender must be accompanied by a deposit of Rs. 50 in cash or Government promissory notes, as earnest money, and be superscribed "Tender for Kempambudhi and Dipambudhi Tanks" in default of which, tenders will be rejected.

6. The final acceptance of any tender will rest with Executive Engineer, who does not bind himself to accept the lowest or any tender or to assign any reason whatever for the rejection of any tender.

7. Within 8 days of the acceptance of the tender, the successful competitor will be required to execute the usual contract bond: in default of which, his tender will be considered cancelled and his earnest money will be forfeited.

8. The name of the successful competitor, whose tender has been accepted, will be posted on the notice board in the Executive Engineer's office in due course. No enquiries regarding the acceptance or rejection of a tender will receive any reply.

1. Read letter No. 4645, dated 22nd March 1888, from the Education Secretary to the Deputy Commissioner, anent the removal of the primary classes of the Shimoga College to the building now occupied by the Kannada School.

Resolved, the removal of the primary classes of the College from the College building to a more central position in the Town is, in the opinion of the Board, a very desirable and even necessary step towards attracting more boys to those classes and making primary education in English available to a large number of boys in the Town, who do not now go to school owing to the great distance of the College from their homes; and the Board are unanimously of opinion that it would be well if the primary classes of the College could be removed to the building now occupied by the Government Kannada School, as suggested by the Deputy Inspector of Schools. But for want of sufficient * funds, the Municipality is not now in a position to afford to pay for those classes.

*Vide Budget submittal with last Proceedings.

2. Read Docket No. 126, dated 16th April 1888, from the Deputy Commissioner of Shimoga, enclosing an extract from the Proceedings of the Representative Assembly held at Mysore on the 10th October 1886, in which the Government have remarked that "the experience of the employment of a European Midwife at Shimoga is anything but satisfactory."

Resolved that the correspondence be recorded and that a copy thereof be forwarded to the Civil Surgeon for information and communication to the Midwife concerned.

3. Read Docket No. 97, dated 5th April 1888, from the Deputy Commissioner, enclosing extracts from the Proceedings of the Representative Assembly held at Mysore on the 10th October 1886.

Extract from Appendix III, page 48, Administration Report for 1881—82 to 1885—86.

Para 2. The hospital is at present situated in one end of the Town at a distance of more than one mile from the opposite end. A Branch Local Fund Dispensary towards Sigehatti will be of immense relief to the patients of the western half of the Town.

Dewan's Reply.

The Deputy Commissioner will discuss the subject in a Municipal meeting and submit the proposal (approved of by the Board), to the Government for orders.

Resolved, the Board are unanimously of opinion that the establishment of a Branch Dispensary somewhere near Sigehatti will prove to be a great boon conferred on the residents of the west end of the Town. But the Municipality cannot afford to incur any expenditure on this account for reasons given in Resolution 1 of these Proceedings.

4. The present situation of the "Inquest House" attached to the Hospital being very objectionable owing to its proximity to the temple of Durga Devi where periodical festivals are celebrated at which large numbers of people are fed, it is resolved by the Board that, with a view to the removal of the Inquest House to another and less objectionable site, the Vice-President do consult the Civil Surgeon on the subject and report the result to the Board at its next meeting.

Para 3. The "Inquest House" is very inconveniently situated directly opposite the Durga Devi's Temple. Annual car festivals and periodical feeding (sadarpunasi) and worships are held and large numbers of people, sheep, &c., gather around and in front of the temple. On every one of such occasions the people make a howl about the situation of the Inquest House as hurting their feelings in a religious point of view. We pray that the house may be removed to some other part outside the Town.

Dewan's Reply.

The Deputy Commissioner will enquire into this without delay and suggest better arrangements if necessary.

5. Read docket No. 1, dated 2nd April, from the Police Assistant Commissioner.

Resolved that the budget provision under the head "Police" being as noted below, the cost of batons and frogs supplied to the Town Police Force, viz., Rs. 25—8—0 be met from the head of "Clothing" for which Rs. 150 has been provided in the budget:—

1	Jamadar, 1st Class	..	..	at Rs. 20+8	=	336.

					Total Rs.	3,416.

6. Read itila No. 416, dated 9th March 1888, from the Amildar of Shimoga and the record accompanying it, regarding the contract for carts for the removal of the sweepings of the Town.

Resolved that as the present applicant H. Rama Rao is the son of the deceased H. Srinivasa Rao, in whose name the contract now stands, the contract be extended to the applicant (H. Rama Rao,) for a period of 3 years and that a fresh mutchalika be taken from him in addition to his producing sufficient security for the due fulfilment of his contract.

7. Read letter from Mr. Ramprasad Tivari, a member of the Board, together with previous references on the subject of the prevalence of small-pox in the town of Shimoga.

Read also the President's remarks thereon.

Resolved that the matter be deferred till the next meeting when, it is hoped, Dr. Choksi will be present.

8. Read account of receipts and expenditure of Municipal Funds for the month of March 1888.

Resolved that the accounts be recorded.

The Board note with pleasure the increase of Rs. 302—3—4 under the head of Octroi as compared with the receipts under the same head for March 1887:—

9. The number of members who attend Municipal meetings is often very small owing to the smallness of the aggregate number of members constituting the Board. The Board therefore pray that Government will be pleased as early as possible to sanction the proposals made in the Board's Proceedings, dated 30th December 1886.

The Board resolve to appoint Lingappa, pensioned Amildar of Honnali, now residing at Shimoga in the place of his son N. Subba Rao, B. A.

MEMORANDUM ON THE PREVENTION OF LEPROSY BY SEGREGATION OF THE AFFECTED.

The following brief Memoir is the third I have compiled for submission to the authorities of British India; and, like its first predecessor, it is based upon unique experience acquired through the enlightened proceedings of the Government of Norway.

By the kindness of Dr. G. A. Hansen, the able Superintendent of the Leper Department, I am enabled to offer the latest known statistical data; and by the courtesy of the Director of the Civil Medical Service in Norway, I have been supplied with a series of reports in continuation of those described in my earliest communication to the India Office, 1873. Since 1875 some changes in these have been made; and in future only quinquennial reports will be issued, the next being due in 1885.

Considering afresh the information thus accruing, I propose in the interests of India, to discuss: (1) the present state of the leper question in Norway; (2) the probable explanation of amendments noted; and, (3) hygienic measures suitable for India. An illustrated note on the pathology of leprosy is also subjoined.

PART I.

PRESENT STATE OF THE LEPER QUESTION IN NORWAY.

The methodical isolation of lepers has, during the past 25 years, been carried on with unremitting effort; the result being a decided diminution of the sick throughout this period. On initiation of the restrictive measures sanctioned, it was not anticipated that marked effects would quickly follow; and hence no dissatisfaction is expressed at the moderate and gradual amendment which has ensued. Recognizing from the first the incurability of leprosy, the State limited its attempts to opposing the hitherto continuous reproduction to disease; and such anticipatory sphere of action admits only of radical rather than showy achievements. How much longer these somewhat costly measures may have to be maintained cannot yet be said: but it has been learnt that restrictive means ought, if possible, to be extended, and could be remitted only at imminent risk of renewed spreading of disease.

Registration of the affected being an essential preliminary, I note that properly it includes, besides an enumeration of the lepers, a due record of their history and movements. In Norway the district medical men have always been aided, under express injunction, by "all clerical and secular officials and functionaries" of Government; and the peasantry not opposing, it might be expected that the yearly register would be fairly exact. In this matter, however, precision is everything; and it has long been apparent that so simple a result as a strictly accurate list of lepers is hard to be obtained. Thus the malady in question begins obscurely and proceeds slowly; it seldom early disables; being at first set down as a blemish, it is disregarded by patients and their friends; and since, in addition, many bad subjects purposely evade registration, it results that of the "fresh additions" brought to light year by year only $\frac{1}{4}$ are "new cases" of quite recent origin, whilst $\frac{3}{4}$ are entered as "overlooked" cases dating back two, three or several years to the beginning of illness. As to the possible number of such latent residua, Dr. Löberg, in 1870, liberally estimated them at 300 (vide my First Report, p. 17); whereas by the adjusted tables of 1880 it appears there must have been then at least 500 unrecognized or undetected lepers in the country, or one-quarter more in excess of the 2,050 actually known. This datum illustrates the difficulties of registration which are met with in Norway, and which also, I may add, obtain in Western India; since e.g., instead of the Census (1871) number of 158, I found there were at least 472 lepers existing in Kathiawar during 1876, most of whom had of course been overlooked (vide Kathiawar Report, p. 65). The Norse Tables show separately the number of asylum inmates (duly known and named) and of home-dwelling sick (only approximately ascertained); these combined numbers furnishing a plain total, which, for convenience, is added in column 10 of the statement below. Such ordinary enumeration is not, however, of more than very limited value; and in 1870 the tables supplied an adjusted list of lepers, combining in addition the numbers who, to judge from their aspect and asserted duration of illness, must for varying periods have been all along living unregistered in the country districts.

Such numbers are still considerable—e. g., on comparing the list below, column 3, with a later one for 1881 I have been privately favored with, it appears that during this last year alone no fewer than 74 "overlooked" cases were found which had to be incorporated with the figures in the preceding year's list at dates corresponding with the beginning of illness as follows:—17 of 2 years' duration, 18 of 3 years', 10 of 4 years', 2 of 5 years', 4 of 6 years', 8 of 7 years', 3 of 8 years', 1 of 9 years', 1 of 10 years', and so on; 4 being referred back so far as 25 years. Besides these, there were 16 strictly "new" cases brought to light in 1881: the total "fresh additions" (as I here use the term) in that year amounting, therefore, to 90. The latest issued table in the amended form is the one for 1880, which is copied below in columns 1 to 9 inclusive:—

Remarks on the above Table.—The headings of the several columns mostly explain themselves. Only the figures in columns 4 (deaths), 5 and 6 (discharged and cured), and in column 8 (asylum inmates), are certain and fixed; all the other numbers being approximate, are liable to rectification in course of time.

A.—Decline of Leprosy.

This fundamental point is capable of being established in various ways. Thus, according to the enumeration in column 10, at the end of 1856 there were known 2,113 lepers, and in 1880 only 1,606, showing a diminution of 507 in the course of 25 years. But if (as in the adjusted lists) all overlooked cases whose duration dated two or more years back be added in their due place, there must have been at least 2,863 lepers (vide column 9) in 1856; and in the succeeding years a corresponding number gradually declining until the latest, when the same annual enumeration is found in both columns—the small difference here of 24 referring to lepers sent to the asylums without ever being registered in the country districts. According to the new reckoning, therefore, the total decline of lepers amounts to 1,281; but this estimate probably is nearly as excessive as the other was defective, because no allowance is made for cases still remaining undetected in 1880. What the precise decline of leprosy has been cannot indeed yet be learnt, and strictly not until the demise of every leper in the country will it be ascertainable, this drawback being inherent to the exacter methods of registration. Probably the diminution has amounted to near 1,000, or about one-third of the total known in 1856; and this would be a very notable result to attain in so short a time.

Confirmation of the opinion now expressed is the following:—According to the above tabular statement the total of new cases (column 3) has been 3,965, while the total outgoings (columns 4, 5 and 6) have amounted to 5,246, leaving a deficiency of 1,281, which being far too considerable to be attributed to oversight becomes explicable only on the inference of a real decline of disease. Again, some details of column 3 not here shown are, I find, very significant: thus, in former years there were about 250 "fresh additions" annually registered, now only about 130; of these upwards of 100 used to be of quite recent origin, whilst now only 25 in the mean are "new" cases. And although successive years might vary, yet registration continuing at least as efficient as ever, this datum becomes conclusive of real amendment, and that in the best possible direction. So also the following:—The proportion of "new cases" to total "fresh additions" used to be 40 per cent, the remainder being made up of "overlooked" cases of more or less prolonged duration, whereas now it is only 16 per cent: that some overlooked cases will hereafter come to light is inevitable, but it is of good augury that these already form the very large majority of fresh additions, the strictly new cases becoming both relatively and absolutely smaller by degrees, and indubitably less.

Lastly, some indirect evidence may be adduced. Relying on the immutable figures in column 4, I note that the mean annual deaths of lepers is now 180 instead of 244 as formerly; whence, on the presumption that the leprous disease has remained unchanged, it becomes evident there are now fewer subjects affected by it. According to column 10, the annual death-rate has declined from 14·2 per cent in 1857 to 9·3 per cent in 1880; and there being no proof of belief in Norway (so far as I am aware) that the pest is in character so much less severe or fatal now than formerly as these two ratios would imply, it follows that in earlier years there were more lepers living than are entered in column 10, those entered in the amended column 9, with a nearly uniform death-rate throughout of 9 per cent, giving manifestly the correcter estimate. Supposing, therefore, leprosy to be in Norway the same scourge now as ever, on this basis I reckon there may have taken place a diminution of about 30 per cent in the total number of its victims.

The above data, in general, concur; and there being none to my knowledge adverse, the point in question must be regarded as affirmed.

B.—Movements amongst the Leper Community: Columns 4, 5 and 6.

Column 4. Mortality.—For the whole 25 years the mean annual deaths are 202; of late about 160 only, of which 87 in asylums and 73 in the districts. Formerly, when the afflicted were more numerous, the deaths also were commoner and rather most frequent in the districts. The mean death-rate of leprosy in Norway

8—9 per cent per annum: amongst the incarcerated (who include the worst and most advanced cases) the mean death-rate rises to 9-14 per cent per annum, whilst among home-dwelling sick it may be estimated at 5-7 per cent per annum. For many years past there has not occurred any marked or progressive change in the mean death rates; thus, in 1852 that of asylums was 13 per cent and of districts under 6 per cent, whilst in 1880 the former was 11·3 per cent and the latter also under 6 per cent. The greater range among asylum inmates than outside these institutions is owing, as appears, to occasional brief outbreaks of local sickness (see below).

Column 5.—In the mean about 10 subjects yearly leave the asylums uncured, or outside become lost sight of, equal to about ½ per cent of the totals known. In Norway, as elsewhere, lepers are subject to home-yearning, secretiveness and impatience of control; but there are fewer facilities for evasion or decamping here than would be in India.

Column 6, The Healed.—The Norwegian authorities have always candidly recognized and published a paucity of results under this heading, which of itself betokens the present hopelessness of a cure for leprosy, and the need of sole reliance on preventive measures for mitigation of this scourge. In the table are entered only 107 as healed, the total annual mean being 4 or 5 cases reported from both districts and asylums, equal to 1·63 per cent of grand total of lepers 6,918, or yearly less than ¼ per cent. Nevertheless, the systematic use of drugs is practised in the asylums, and particularly in Lungegaard Hospital under charge of the venerable Dr. Danielssen, where are admitted cases specially adapted for early and energetic treatment. It appears from the reports that most recommended remedies have been fairly tried, yet without any uniformly successful result; and some partial mitigation of suffering is as yet all that drugs can effect. I also note that the detailed tables have a column for cases relapsing into sickness after 'healing'; and from observation overywhere, it is known that the more prominent marks of disease may spontaneously subside, more or less, and remain in a quasi latent state for several months or years. In confirmed cases some evidence of the infection may at all times be detected, so that 'cure' becomes a provisional expression. And lastly, I see in these European documents a reflex of Indian experience; in the occasional disappearance of skin-disease termed leprous, but really of a different and more amenable character.

C.—The Isolated and Non-isolated: Columns 7 and 8.

Column 7, Home-dwellers.—Necessarily, from their large numbers, all lepers in the country could not be relegated to asylums; but the aim has been to isolate as many as practicable under existing conditions. The result is, according to the table that the series of district-residents is a steadily diminishing one, now amounting to, only 37 per cent of its earliest sum. At successive decennial periods the numbers in column 7 were as follows:—1860, at home 2,242 or about 80 per cent of total lepers then known; in 1870, at home 1,769 equal to about 70 per cent; and in 1880, at their homes 965 or about 61 per cent of all afflicted then known. By the year 1885 it is anticipated that 50 per cent or one-half the entire leper community, will be isolated; and by 1895 it is hoped that 75 per cent may be so separated, leaving only 25 per cent at unrestricted liberty amongst healthy persons. That there really has taken place this most desirable diminution in the number of free home-dwelling sick is shown inferentially by the lessened proportion of deaths therein occurring; thus, whilst during 1860—70 the numbers dying both within and without asylums were nearly identical, during 1870—80 the proportion of asylum-deaths rose to 71·6 per cent and that of district-deaths sank to 28·4 per cent of total deaths. In fact the declining loss of life from leprosy in Norway is due solely to lessening of home mortality; and the smaller this becomes, obviously the better for the common weal.

Column 8, The Immured.—In a population of any size the amount of asylum accommodation must be so limited that only a part of all lepers can be segregated from the sound. In Norway, three large and two smaller institutions—of which three as Bergen and two further north—comprise the available means of isolation; capacity equal to lodgment of 800 sick: total population of country about 200,000, total lepers still near 2,000. The minimum of incarcerated was 235 in 1856, the maximum 759 ten years later; and thence a slow decline to 617 in 1880. This decline is not due to lessening of accommodation, but to persistent unwillingness of the peasantry to send in their sick; and I learn it is now contemplated to seek more compulsory legal powers of segregating lepers, if not in the asylums then at their own homes. That a real and continuous progress of isolation has, however, already been effected is evident:—thus, at first in 1856, only about 8 per cent of sick were immured; in 1860, the figures were 539 in 2,781, or 19 per cent; and in 1870, they had risen to 764 in 2,533, equal to 30 per cent. In 1880 the figures were 617 in 1,582, or 39 per cent; but this datum is an uncorrected one, and it may be that the ratio of immured to free has not of late much increased. If this surmise be as correct as it seems there is, I would remark, additional reason to urge isolation at home in aid of the more public means. The numbers yearly admitted into the asylums during the past 20 years has varied from 173 to 112: during the last quinquennium it has been about 125, a minute proportion of these being due to transfers and re-admissions. The outgoing by disease amongst the immured also varies, there occasionally happening brief epidemics of erysipelas, pneumonia or diarrhœa, though such signs of 'hospitalism' are not, I think, commoner in leper asylums than in other collections of sick persons. Further details regarding these institutions will be found in my earlier report; and here I will only add that amongst their inmates there is commonly a slight predominance of women (319 females to 298 males in 1880); whilst outside, men are most numerous—843 males to 763 females in 1880.

PART II.

PROBABLE EXPLANATION OF AMENDMENTS NOTED.

According to the preceding section, in Norway there has of late years occurred a distinct decline in the number of lepers, and this under opposite conditions, namely, on the one hand a continuous production of new cases, and on the other a large effacing death-rate. A third important condition, however, intervenes, and that is, the complete isolation of a large proportion of the affected persons. Other possible agents in the amelioration noted will also be alluded to below.

In limine, I should state that the 'cure' of leprosy by purely medical treatment has not practically contributed anything towards obliteration of the disease. To rely, therefore, for a general amendment upon any of the varied remedial measures often confidently put forward would be to indulge in fallacies hurtful as well as deceptive and to encourage a kind of anticipation hitherto shown by experience to be futile.

Next, that the disease is subsiding from a 'natural' cessation of its growth seems to be disproved by the following considerations:—Supposing no reproduction of the malady, its decline would be much quicker than is now happening; for with a death-rate of 10 per cent per annum, the 2,863 cases alive in 1856 would in the course of 7 years have been reduced about one-half, and at the end of 14 years to about 650, and so on, till, at the end of 25 years, there would remain only about 200 lepers, whose mean age would not be less than 60 years—assuming the mean age at starting to be 35 years. In reality the rate of decline would be more rapid than this, because the death-rate rapidly rises with advancing years: thus the Norse tables show that not less than 40 per cent of all lepers die between 31 and 50 years of age, 17·3 per cent dying earlier at 21—30 years. But the same tables prove that there has not occurred any such rapid diminution of the pest; there now being known at least nine times as many lepers living as should be, on the hypothesis of a direct dying out of disease in the country. Moreover, that leprosy in Norway really displays any natural tendency to subside is disproved by the researches of Dr. Hansen (Report of 1880, pp. 17-8), who shows that in most of the affected districts the death-rate is not by any means in excess of the increase-rate; the very reverse, indeed, being the fact—which indicates that the natural tendency of leprosy is more or less [illegible]y to extend.

Thirdly, the decline of disease might be attributed to mitigation of various hurtful agencies popularly associated with its origin: e. g., to the lessened use of a fish diet, to a less harsh and insanitary mode of life, or to the extended cultivation of an originally noxious soil, or to some climatic improvement. But, whilst the coast-dwelling peasantry of Norway, in comparison with other (not all) countries of Europe, have admittedly long dwelt in a backward hygienic condition, living much on fish and potatoes, intermarrying freely, and being subject to overcrowding during their long winters; still on the other hand, it is notorious that they are an unusually well developed and long-lived race: and besides, individual lepers are, as often as others, even robust people. Generalized statements, therefore, not sufficing to uphold the view suggested it ought to be shown when and where hygienic improvements have had an exclusive connection with the decline of leprous disease inside limited areas, often placed wide apart; as well as with its diminution during short periods of time. Evidence of this kind, however, I have not met with; and on further comparing the conditions under which leprosy now flourishes in other parts of the globe, I fail to find any cogent evidence that this disease is essentially dependent upon malhygienic states, resembling those long prevalent in Norway. Experience here (as elsewhere), rather points to its dependence on personal conditions; for where most abundant the disease is there most irregularly distributed: thus, amidst healthy spots in Norway there are adjoining ecclesiastical areas with about 2,000 people (all living under closely similar states and habits), where the number of lepers was known to vary as much as 80, 30 and 8—these figures being now reduced respectively to 17, 15 and 0, without any notable change in population: and to attribute such striking local variations solely to widely operating agency seems to me both rash and, in the presence of a closer acting influence, needless. Nor to my mind, any more satisfactory is the assumption of some vague individual predisposition amongst the affected.

In his report for 1875, Dr. Hansen discusses this subject in the only suitable way, namely, by reference to examples; he remarks (p. 60) that if mal-hygiene operated as a direct, or (through rousing hereditary taint) as an indirect cause of leprosy, there should before the asylums were erected have been proceeding a decided hygienic improvement, the effects of which were manifest just when the practice of isolation began; such improvement also ought to have preceded or attended, at least, the after course of disease; hereditary influence, too, then being checked, as well as the spontaneous appearance of new cases. But of all this there is no evidence, the facts known tending rather to disproof. In more detail, the districts of Tromso and Trondhjem should present a remarkable picture of hygienic progress; thus, during 1857-60 little or no isolation and an advent of new cases in 1856-60 and 1861-65 almost identical of 352 and 361 respectively—also no sign of hygienic advance; but in 1861-65 there were sent 293 lepers into the asylums, and during the following 5 years the new cases declined by 37—a number almost precisely corresponding to the estimate, which might have been made from the prior rate of increase proportionate to number of home dwellers. Is it imaginable, here, that any culture-amendment had then suddenly culminated and found expression? Next comes the fact that, in general, leprosy still continues to progress at its former ratio; which would show that hygienic changes, even if concurrently made, can have had little or no influence on the progress of the disease. And further, were hygiene (in the ordinary sense of the word) really so operative as is urged, the isolation of lepers must offer scanty promise of good, as not itself materially lessening hurtful conditions; but this inference is contrary to other reasonable deductions. Some of the above remarks apply to hereditary influence as a source of leprous infection; for in not a few examples of local decline of disease submitted to analysis there has been found too prompt and decided an amelioration in families to permit of this slow-acting agency being regarded as mainly influential. And in some so far as appears to me, leprosis can be directly mitigated by dietetic, hygienic or climatic influences only to the same extent as, and no further than, the analogous chronic infections of man known as syphilis and tuberculosis.

Lastly, failing other explanation, it may be asked if the decline of leprosy in Norway be not nearly connected with the practice of isolating the sick in the asylums erected for their use. These institutions, I would remark, were originally intended, by segregating apart the more vigorous lepers of both sexes, to aid in checking the propagation of disease through marriage; they were also meant to accommodate the worst cases, or those a burden to their friends; and to a minor extent they were to serve as hospitals for curative treatment. Though founded so far back as 1856 it has only of late become possible to estimate their influence over the general progress of this very chronic pest; and owing to the inevitable obstacles to correct registration alluded to in Part I, the data suitable for satisfactory analysis are still but limited. Dr. Hansen's observations in his quinquennial reports for 1875 and 1880 may, I think, be regarded as the earliest attempts scientifically made to determine the real effect of the isolation of lepers in a community: his main conclusions are summarized below. I have also considered the recorded opinion of preceding Norse physicians and, on the whole, prefer the later view. In Part I it is shown that leprosy is not declining simply by a process of dying out, but that there is continually taking place a certain reproduction of disease; and it is only when and where this last proceeds at a lesser rate than the death-loss that the pest can be said to be subsiding. A third condition, however, concurs, viz., a contemporary removal from the districts and isolation in asylums of many old and new cases of infection; and the question now arises, how does this isolating process influence the others? or these failing, itself account for the amendment proved in Part I? Within the asylums there occurs a higher death-rate than outside, whilst in them no new cases can arise; on the other hand, in the country districts there obtains a lower death-rate, and here alone do new cases appear. The asylums serve as a means of partially evacuating the infected districts, abstracting particularly the worst examples of disease; and they are not necessarily, it might be said, otherwise concerned in the general progress of disease. But would such assertion be correct? Let it be agreed that to clearly comprehend the course of leprosy, attention must be directed to conditions obtaining in the districts, amongst which the chief one is the number of "new" cases which arise, proportionately to the total of "home-dwelling" sick: for if the accretion-rate of new cases exceed the death-rate of home-dwellers, then disease is on the increase; and vice versâ. Now, in his report for 1875, Dr. Hansen shows that up to 1870 in only one easterly district had the death-rate exceeded the production-rate; whilst everywhere else the accretion-rate was highest. There had everywhere been removals to the asylums, and hence a diminution of the mortality outside these institutions: still, had no such emptying of the districts taken place, the death-rate would, nowhere, with the exception named (itself doubtless open to explanation), have exceeded the production-rate, and the total of lepers in the districts at the close of 1870 would in all probability have been quite as great as in 1856—or "in some places unquestionably greater." Elaborate tables are given, from which it appears that the yearly increment of new cases in a district regularly declines just according to the larger number of lepers removed to the asylums. Thus, e. g., in Sogn district, whilst these increments proportionately to the numbers living at home remain the same in 1856—60, 1861—65, and 1866—70, yet by removal to asylums, the numbers at home being continuously reduced, there has occurred a concomitant reduction of new cases, as shown in the successive yearly sums of 89, 64 and 59; which still display a definite and fixed ratio to the immediately preceding totals of home-dwellers. No exception to the above rule has been found; and from close and rigid scrutiny of the data alone, it seems clear that the diminution of new cases in the districts goes pari passu, with the lessening number of home-dwelling sick; at least, amongst all the several data, no other relationship is so clear and invariable as this one.

In his report for 1880, with matured statistics coming down to 1875, Dr. Hansen is not less emphatic; and finding a determinate ratio between the number of new cases and the immediately preceding number of home-dwelling lepers in a district (taking 5-yearly periods for each), he employs such ratio to make a forecast of the future progress of leprosy in Norway. The particular data adduced in support of these views are certainly remarkable and seem to me adequate: they are however, too elaborate for reproduction here.* Once more, it is shown that in Norway the proportionate growth of leprosy is by no means diminishing; and hence an inference that the conditions for extension of the disease are in no way more unfavorable now than formerly. Since, therefore, the total of lepers is certainly lessening, this cannot be due to amendment (if any) in home-conditions; and the figures quoted are quite conclusive against the view that leprosy persists only as the result of ordinary mal-hygiene or a hurtful clime. In 1880, as previously, it is found that in the great majority of affected districts the death-rate of lepers lies below their increase-rate—the exceptions being one, or at most two, out of nine such districts; and as regards the other seven or eight, Dr. Hansen remarks the death-rate is so far below the production-rate (viz., from 2 to 6 per cent lower), that the condition of these localities would have been most grievous, had there not taken place a large emptying of the sick thence into the Asylums:—"Indeed, except in Nordfjord, everywhere would the actual production-rate have been greater than ever before, without such prior isolation as has been available, and incomplete as this is and always has been, we may congratulate ourselves that it was practicable, and ought to feel grateful to those who by their zealous labors for the public weal have effected the establishment of the existing Asylums" (p. 18).

Briefly, analysis of the official statistics proves that the affected districts are becoming emptied of their sick, not by excess of deaths but by abstraction and isolation in Asylums and at home of many affected persons. Dr. Hansen also very reasonably adds that on the supposition of leprosy spreading by contagion, one can readily understand the disease may be subsiding generally, in spite of a sustained production-rate; since, consequent on removal to the Asylums and on isolation at home there must necessarily remain at large a smaller number of contagion-bearers capable of infecting the hitherto sound. Indeed, except upon the hypothesis of contagion, no other explanation of events seems possible.

[illegible] the varying amount of disease old and new, which prevails in individual areas, Dr. Hansen refers to the corresponding differences met with in abundance of the mild (smooth) and severe (nodular) forms of leprosis, showing in detail that where the worse form is commonest, there arise the largest proportion of new cases. Though somewhat recondite, this explanation I regard as probably valid.

Summary of Part II.—The amendment of public health under notice cannot be satisfactorily accounted for by reference solely to a general improvement in diet, dwellings, soil or climate; nor has purely medical treatment ever proved curative; and so far from leprosy in Norway showing a natural tendency to subside, there is ample evidence of a present activity equal to that displayed by the disease 25 years ago. Some influence might, therefore, be assigned to the special measure of isolating lepers; and in point of fact, amongst all the available data, to none does amendment bear such definite relation—fixed or progressive—as it does to that lessening of lepers at liberty which results from the practice of enforced isolation. I admit that demonstration of such essential relationship is to be had only through a perfect acquaintance with every detailed instance adduced; yet with present information, I submit the evidence is enough to prove its reality, and to indicate the true modus operandi of leper-isolation as practised in Norway. More than a single beneficial influence may, indeed, be at work; but predominant is this exclusive dealing with the individual leper as himself the source of ill to others. So much being granted, it remains only to add that the transmission of personal ailment is necessarily effected either promptly by contagion, or slowly through communication to offspring—the intimate mode of transmission being essentially the same in either instance; and here Norwegian experience seems to indicate the usual predominance of contagion.

* Dr. Hansen's figures refer to separate districts in the total affected area. On analysis of column 3 (new cases) and column 7 (lepers at large) of the large table above, embracing the whole area, I find, after excluding the incomplete data of later years, that during the earlier years, 1856—70 inclusive, the annual ratio between new cases and sick home-dwellers is, in the main, very near 1 to 10. This implies the yearly advent of 1 new case to every 10 lepers at large; which is a ratio larger than the mean death-rate of such lepers. Precise figures for the three included quinquennial periods are successively as follows:—Mean annual number of lepers at large 2,371, of new cases 239; 1,994 and 204; 1,859 and 177. Subsequently to 1870 the ratio of new cases gradually declines; doubtless because their numbers have not yet been sufficiently ascertained. These data might have been introduced into the text of Part I, but they were reserved for this place as confirming the inference of Dr. Hansen, who does not however (that I see) state his estimate to be the same as that here independently elicited. Whilst well aware that several conditions must intervene, I am still of opinion that here is evidence of a quite definite influence; and I agree with Dr. Hansen that the Norwegian statistics contain no more constant datum than this one, of a distinct proportion between lepers at large and the newly-made leprous.

PART III.

PREVENTIVE MEASURES SUITABLE FOR INDIA.

Both social and humanitarian motives would inculcate the systematic relief of the leprous sick whose malady to themselves is so grievous and abiding and to others so offensive or even hurtful. To all who recognise a claim thus founded the experience patiently and not uncostly accruing in Norway must appear equally interesting and encouraging. Being scientifically acquired, the principles hereby evolved become applicable under conditions so widely diverse as those of Norway and India. First, as to country and clime, there is no reason whatever to suspect that leprosy anywhere differs in origin or nature, any more than it differs in signs, course or consequence; and this consideration at once disposes of pre-conceivable objections to the best line of treatment being the same in both countries named. Analogy with other chronic diseases common to Europe and the East serves to confirm this view. Next, as to collateral circumstances, these are but subsidiary; only in India the people being subject, more ignorant, apathetic and prejudiced, it is for their leaders and the ruling powers to initiate the needful preventive measures, and to uphold these until by spread of knowledge and experience of good effected the public approval becomes assured.

General treatment of the leprous as a peculiarly affected class may be either ordinary or stringent. Thus, the sick may be collected and dealt with as ordinary hospital patients; without, that is, regard to prevention or future amendments. Or, for permanent relief, they should be strictly isolated from the rest of the community, and amongst themselves the sexes kept apart—isolation of this kind being practicable at the homes of lepers, but better carried out in Asylums. Evidently, this last method is the only one likely to check and lessen disease; it has, in Norway, proved to be beneficial in both these directions, as well as by awakening the people to a sense of rational self-help and a willingness to co-operate further. Such a cogent and attractive stimulus is much needed in India, where the foundations of public hygiene have yet to be laid.

Segregation is practicable in three modes, either separately or combined:—

1. By erecting plain Asylums at certain centres, each of which would be a refuge common to several districts; and a place of detention, under due management and supervision.

2. By founding Leper Colonies or village communities mainly of the affected, who, while allowed more liberty of movement, should yet be prevented from mingling with the peasantry around: hence still the need of strict supervision. Many spots would thus serve—such as deserted forts, decayed villages, and places now waste yet not far from other sources of supply, or not without near resources easily resuscitated.

3. By requiring the strict isolation of leprous subjects retained in their homes at express wish of friends. Suitable separate lodgment would be indispensable; unsuitable shelter is even now sometimes supplied. Joining of such home-isolation with more public measures should not be overlooked; for to it experience in Norway seems to point as a means essential to complete success within a moderate period of time; and in India it would have to be still more largely resorted to.

For carrying out the above, in addition to funds, legislative authority is needed to take up the vagrant sick, to remove the sorely diseased who is insufficiently guarded at home, and at times to enforce continued insolation of the infected until medical sanction of liberty be granted. Such authoritative interference will, I am aware, be differently regarded by many and disliked by the masses; yet it cannot at present be dispensed with, and sufficient precedent exists in several British enactments against small-pox and contagious diseases of men and animals. Besides, as analogues, special institutions already exist for the permanently disabled, the blind and the insane; also, in most civilized countries, for those incurably affected with cancer and consumption. At one time, indeed, Asylums for lepers were common all over Europe, where now the disease generally has become eradicated; whilst Norway still presents a number of these peculiar establishments adapted to modern requirements, and, as I have tried to show, not less than formerly of decided efficacy.

Note on the Pathology of Leprosy.—I have long regarded this malady as one of the great chronic infective diseases of the human race; and such view I hold to be confirmed by Hansen's discovery that in leprous structures there is always to be found an algoid growth—a bacterium, which is absent from both healthy and differently diseased structures. In its fresh state I once saw this organism at Bergen (1875), and soon after at Bombay; and quite recently it has been repeatedly studied on the Continent of Europe. With the aid of new re-agents its presence is easily demonstrated; and I offer the appended illustration as an original one, corresponding closely with descriptions given of European specimens. In June last I excised a small nodule from the arm of a leper; and after immediate hardening in alcohol made sections for double staining after Ehrlich's method. All these fragments show crowds of bacilli and several large collections of granules (? spores), which when untinted no doubt correspond to the "brown cells" figured as characteristic in Plate XII of my large work on Leprosy (London, 1874): besides, there are seen cells and nuclei belonging to the common tissues of the nodule: see FIG. 1. Here the patient was in fair health, the cutaneous eruption of several months standing, and quiescent or slowly subsiding. The minute organisms could not possibly have been accidentally introduced; their number is immense, and they seem to be growing actively, the products, doubtless, being eventually absorbed. As contrasted with the violent symptoms attending pathogenetic bacteria of acute infections, the little irritation, local or general, commonly attending bacillus lepræ is remarkable; yet occasional exacerbations of disease do occur, during which there is fever and wide reproduction of the nodules; and thus the general analogy of leprosis to syphilis and tuberculosis becomes apparent. European observers have found both bacilli and spores in lymphatic glands and the blood; also in diseased nerve-trunks, liver, spleen and testes: the evidence of systemic infection being then complete. It is known that the organism will grow outside the body, and there is evidence that its germs (like those of tubercle) are freely given off from the persons of lepers; and by comparative experiment it is further ascertained that although general disease fail to appear, yet leprous material inoculated in animals slowly leads to a real—if imperfect—local reproduction of the leprous processes taking place in man. As systemic infection with a visible eruption occurs only at prolonged and irregular intervals in him, in the lower animals (themselves possibly less fit subjects) these intervals may be so long as to require a year, or more, for such outward manifestation. At present, proof of the contagiousness of leprosy is mainly inferential; but further experiments may furnish positive data, like those now being acquired in the instance of tuberculosis, which so nearly resembles leprosis (vide large Work, p. 176). This similitude holds good not only in a general clinical sense, but also as regards the attendant parasitic organism; and, in evidence, I have drawn some figures of the bacillus tuberculosus on the same scale as those of the lepragrowths: see PLATE, FIG. 2. This second specimen was taken from the lung of a consumptive patient, who died in the J. J. Hospital: similar appearances have been seen in the sputa of other phthisical patients, and they correspond to English descriptions. The b. lepræ I find to be usually shorter and more variable in dimensions—length $\frac{1}{7500}$ to $\frac{1}{3000}$ in.; less bent, oftener bulging in centre and thinning at the ends; oftener dotted in aspect or composed of distinct granules in linear series, the number and site of which differ considerably. The amount of small rods and signs of spore-production greatly exceed what has been seen in tuberculated tissues; yet the general characters and processes appear much alike in both sets of specimens. Other particular features are shown in the drawings, made as accurately as possible with the aid of a $\frac{1}{12}$ in. water-immersion lens, eye-piece B, and achromatic condenser of Swift.

"Further observation on the Prevention of Leprosy by segregation of the affected.

(For preceding Articles see the Bombay Government Gazette of 6th March 1884, Part III.)

"Having, in anticipation of the next quinquennial report, received from Bergen a short summary of the latest results of the segregation of lepers as carried out under the Norwegian Government, I think it not inopportune, with reference to recently awakened public interest concerning leprosy in India and elsewhere, to submit the following information. Dr. G. A. Hansen's position as Director of the Norse Leper Department serves for ample guarantee of the authenticity and accuracy of the statistics subjoined; and my friend of 1872 has added to his obliging communication some data of collateral interest bearing on the etiology of this national pest.

"First, as to the progressive decline of leprosy in Norway, my previous India Office Reports and the Bombay Memorandum of 1884 will be found to contain all the needful evidence establishing the fact that the total number of lepers officially registered had, between the years 1856 and 1880 inclusive, diminished from 2,863 to 1,382—see, for example, column 9 of the table given in the local Gazette. Of that later total, 617 were lodged in the Government Asylum, and 965 were living at their homes.

"The three chief asylums are recruited from the country districts under conditions already detailed; and the number of lepers they lodge at present is, I learn, 'about 500.' Owing it is understood to economic measures, the asylum population has of late years been somewhat reduced: otherwise, had the previous annual mean of about 650 (for the decennium 1871—1880) been equably maintained until now, this sum would exactly equal the total of lepers at large, as shown below; and so would have been realised the sanguine hope expressed five years ago in the words 'by the year 1885 it is anticipated that 50 per cent. or one-half the entire leper community will be isolated'—see my preceding Article, page 3, heading C, column 7. A detailed statement of the incarcerated sufferers for the quinquennium 1881—1885 is promised so soon as the official reports are complete; and since the greatest pains are taken to reach accuracy of every detail, some time longer may elapse before they are issued: meantime, the above comment may be regarded as noteworthy by way of both encouragement and warning.

"As regards 'home-dwelling' lepers—hygienically, perhaps, the more interesting and important section to notice—Dr. Hansen has furnished me in advance with the following datum, which concisely shows the diminution outside the asylums that has been of late and is still going on, as he remarks, 'steadily and tolerably fast'.

"Reserving any comment on the highly localised distribution of disease as indicated above, and also on the ratio of the affected to the whole population of separate districts, I remark that this table, as it stands, shows a notable beneficial change in the amount of suffering, as evidenced by decline in number of lepers from 938 to 645—being a diminution of 293, which is equivalent to a fall of 31·24 per cent on the higher number at starting; or, in other words, at the close not far short of one-third less than at the beginning of the five years under review. And even supposing as is likely, there be hereafter found some 'overlooked' cases (see the preceding Article), still the above considerable abatement of disease within so brief a period of time cannot but be deemed both impressive and significant.

"Adverting now to the whole series of data from 1856 to 1885, it appears that the number of home-dwelling lepers in Norway has declined from 2,628 to 645, or to the extent of 75 per cent, in the course of 29 years. Again, upon closer analysis of the two tables in hand, I find that the ratios of decline at successive quinquennial periods have been as follows:—15 per cent, 13 per cent, 4 per cent, 14 per cent, 20 per cent, 31 per cent, and 31·2 per cent; so that during the last 20 years, at least, there has occurred a tolerably regular progressive improvement in the rate of abatement; and this datum would tend to encourage the hopes of an early practical extinction of the pest. The contrast of such a prospect as this, of the effective eradication of leprosy within the course of two or three generations, with the past experience recorded of other European countries in which the national plague persi-with infinite aggravations for at least as many centuries, seems to me most striking. I am aware that fallacies lurk especially amongst vital statistics, but I also know that the data under review have been particularly tested; and in the small and defined kingdom to which they relate, the Government is such as to permit of a far more rigid scrutiny than usual.

"These facts, then, may speak for themselves; and as to their application, it may suffice to remind that there are in India minor provinces and even single districts, which individually could represent the kingdom of Norway as regards the amount of their leper population—this statement being based upon Indian Census returns, and from my own inquiries in Kathiawar I learnt that much less than the whole truth may so appear—vide Part I of former memorandum, page I.

"In such matters as this some error arises deviously through prejudice, the sick hiding their complaint, and families and communities screening their sick members; the result usually being, without doubt, a considerable distortion or else defect in formal enumerations of the afflicted. Moreover, there are direct obstacles to be encountered, if measures at all approaching to effective isolation be attempted. So has been and is now the experience in Europe—the harsh old edicts against lepers I purposely pass over—and so difficult has it proved to overcome prejudice or to interfere with the liberty of the subject, that, for example, only in June 1885 did the Norse Parliament consent to Dr. Hansen's proposal that the sanitary officials in the country districts be authorised to inform the leper subject he must take satisfactory measures against risking the infection of other people if he be allowed to live at home..... and if he will not apply such means, the sanitary authority may order him to enter an asylum..... the authorities are not compelled to do anything, but if they choose they may intervene..... As regards general sanitary measures (which the peasantry are now being instructed in), improvement must chiefly depend upon the co-operation of the people themselves..... Upon these few passages, offered as sample, I need not now venture any comment as to their applicability to India; the restrictions imposed being a sequel of prior regulations, and but part of a practical system of segregation. It may, therefore, be enough to remark that, other considerations apart, one advantage to all leper infected countries which the example of Norway by her sagacious and patriotic legislation presents, consists in their being now enabled beforehand to deliberately count the cost as compared with the benefit of similar measures, for mutatis mutandis there seems no valid reason to mistrust the efficacy anywhere of 'isolation,' as a principle.

"As to the rationale of 'segregation,' or 'isolation' it is to be noted that these two methods are practically alike. There are more reasons than one that the leprous had best be kept apart. From a medical point of view, ideas have of late changed, tending now to revert to the older preference for complete isolation. Thus, at the initiation of legislative interference, the Norwegian physicians regarded leprosy as a disease kept up by hereditary transmission, and therefore recommended as sufficient the segregation of the sexes apart; whereas the present official Superintendent works with a conviction that more probably this malady is propagated by contagion, and hence he inculcates the desirability of isolating the individual of either sex. Neither of these opinions, I might add, has influenced the collection, nor need either bias the interpretation, of the statistical data under review.

"While it is not my intention here to discuss these fundamental topics, I may offer the following remarks as not unserviceable or out of place. According to the doctrine of 'pangenesis,' heredity itself may be due to a kind of infection. The discovery by Hansen of the bacillus lepræ inclines strongly to the side of contagion as the effective agency, both abstractedly, and by analogy with the admittedly similar affection of tuberculosis, in which the known infective agent is a similar pathogenetic organism—see the drawing in my Bombay Memoir. At the present day, most physicians would hesitate to advance the view of a wholly spontaneous, climatic, dietetic or mal-hygienic origin of tubercular disease; and such a view of the origin of leprosy might, on the same grounds also be questioned. A hiatus, however, exists here; for whilst the contagiousness of tubercle (suspected in the human subject) can be demonstrated by experiment on the lower animals, no such proof as regards leprosy has yet been certainly attained. Dr. Hansen, indeed, writes that he has seen specimens of this disease derived from inoculated rabbits, and that he has the subject now under confirmation. He remarks it appears of great importance that the material employed in experiment should be perfectly fresh—the vitality of the bacilli seems to be less in old leprous nodules; and, besides, a period of several months must elapse before the results of inoculation can be surely verified. The milder form (so called 'anæsthetic' or nerve leprosy) presents the characteristic organisms; and as regards the severer 'nodular' form, Dr. Hansen finds these bacilli in wandering cells amidst the epidermic scales surrounding the true leprous ulcer; they are always present in the skin there. The internal organs of the frame may also be the seat of these organisms.

* NOTE.—Owing to differences in the definition of 'infirmities,' the two late Census returns of the Bombay Presidency do not afford the means of estimating the advance or decline of leprosy here between the years 1872 and 1881. On the last occasion it was intended that only instances of 'black' or 'true' leprosy should be enrolled, and the total then seems to have been 10,095 (vide Table XVII, or 10,248 by an enumeration at page 100 of the text). The local distribution of the disease being, as usual, highly varied, there were most affected in the Deccan Division, viz. 5,774 lepers, of whom 4,015 were found in three of the six districts composing this division. In the text of the Census returns, no special allusion is made to the example of Norway; and the 'Pellagra' of Italy seems to be regarded as the analogue of leprosy in that country. The distinction between the two maladies is marked and was pointed out in my second India Office Report—the part published in a hand book of skin diseases for use in India.

"There is, I may further observe, a third form of disease strongly resembling the leprous, which like the latter is peculiar to man, and which has already been made the subject of special legislation, being now regarded as truly contagious at all its stages. Yet I note as regards its later manifestations, which alone are those comparable to the eruptions of leprosy, it is within the memory of living medical men that non-contagion was not only asserted, but held to be proved by direct experiment. Considering, therefore, the medical history of tuberculosis and of syphilis, in connection with what modern research has revealed of leprosy, there would a priori seem, despite many plausible negative objections, ample grounds for suspecting the full scourge under notice of being transmissible as are the two others. Deliberate experiment on man (the surest test) being impossible, valid evidence must be sought for comparatively, or else less directly through instances of naturally acquired disease. As yet, comparative experiments have proved dubiously; but with respect to the seemingly direct communication of disease to healthy persons living in intimate and prolonged contact with the affected, several such affirmative instances are known; one of the latest, and perhaps clearest, being that of Father Damien at the Sandwich Islands.*

"Finally, that the view of the direct communicability of leprosy is at least a good working-hypothesis, may be admitted upon considering the results of the strict segregation of the affected, as set forth in the new Norwegian statistics; for, except upon such view, no adequate explanation appears of that prompt and decided abatement of disease which these careful data show.

(Signed) H. V. CARTER."

* NOTE.—And what shall be said of instances like one coming to light whilst these lines were penned:—A married woman with children, native of Tellicherry, after residing three years in Bombay (Fort), two years ago went to Europe on a visit to her friends (family all healthy). developed there severe and typical disease during the winter season, was not benefited by treatment, and was urged to return to India for the sake of milder climate; arrived here in a pitiable state only a few days since, and now has no near resort but the ward shed attached to a Native General Hospital. For leprosy amongst Europeans contracted in India, see some remarks at the close of Second India Office Report, 1876.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

WEATHER SUMMARY FOR NOVEMBER 1887.

During November the high pressure area, which appears over Northern India during October, becomes a more strongly marked and more permanent feature of the distribution, while at the same time the area of low average pressure, over the Bay, which is, perhaps, the most striking feature of the October distribution, moves southward towards the Equator and is followed over the Bay by a brisk barometric rise, an improvement in the weather and a cessation of the north-east monsoon rain-fall of the Carnatic. During the past November this course of events has been followed in a typical manner. On the first day of the month the mean pressure over the Panjab, the North-Western Provinces, Sind and Rajputana was about 30·000 inches and over Madras about 29·885 inches, while on the 30th November the mean pressure over the former region was about 30·170 inches and over the latter about 30·069 inches, showing a nearly equal rise over both regions. Similarly, on the 1st of November rain was reported at nearly all the Bay stations and as far north as Dacca and Silchar, while on the 30th the only rainfall reported was a slight shower at Colombo.

On the 1st of the month the cyclonic storm, which was noticed over the west of the Bay in last month's summary, was still shown off the Coromandel Coast, but it was fast filling up. It was, however, occasioning rather heavy rainfall over the whole of the Bay area, in Malabar, Ceylon and as far north as Calcutta, Dacca and Cachar. A large area of high pressure overlay the whole of Northern India and, except for the cyclonic circulation induced by the storm off the Coromandel coast, north-easterly and easterly winds prevailed almost everywhere. Over the Peninsula and Bengal the sky was heavily clouded. During the 2nd and 3rd conditions did not materially change. The depression over the Bay continued to fill up, but it left the weather in an unsettled state and rain fell generally around the Bay and over the south of the Peninsula. On the 4th the chart showed a feeble depression off the west coast of the Peninsula. This depression occasioned rain in Malabar and Bombay as far north as Goa and Belgaum, and as the weather remained unsettled over the Bay of Bengal rain was thus reported from both coasts and from the interior of the Peninsula. In Northern India pressure was high, the wind circulation normal and the weather fine. On the 5th the low pressure area off the west coast had travelled northward as far as Ratnagiri, while the attendant rainfall had advanced as far as Bombay and Poona. All over the west and interior of the Peninsula rain was consequently falling, but in the Bay region the weather had improved, the only stations recording rainfall being Diamond Island, Masulipatam, Vizagapatam, and Gopalpore. In Northern India there was no change. The chart of the 6th showed that the west coast depression had advanced to between Ratnagiri and Bombay, while the area of rainfall and unsettled conditions had spread northward and north-eastward, and now included in addition to the Peninsula, Khandesh, the Berars, the south of the Central Provinces and part of Central India. The wind had become very variable over Northern India, and indeed the weather over the greater part of the country had become more or less affected by the low pressure area in the west. On the 7th though the depression off the Bombay coast appeared to be filling up, the weather over a large part of India remained in an unsettled state. Rain was reported from the Peninsula, Khandesh, the Berars, the Central Provinces, and as far north as Jhansi, and the cloud proportion was high except at the extreme north-eastern and north-western stations. On the two following days, viz., the 8th and 9th conditions improved somewhat, the rainfall gradually fell off over the central parts of the country and became lighter over the Peninsula, while the distribution of pressure and the circulation of the winds became more such as is characteristic of the cold weather months. Between the 9th and 13th slight showers continued to fall over Central India, Khandesh and Guzerat as well as the south of the Peninsula, but by the 14th these unsettled conditions had disappeared, a large area of high pressure had been established over the central and north-western parts of the country, while relatively low pressures were reported from the south-west and south-east coasts of the Peninsula. On this day the weather was clear over by far the greater part of the country, and the only rainfall reported was from Ceylon and Diamond Island. From the 15th high pressures and fine, settled, weather prevailed throughout almost the whole of the Indian region, the actually highest readings being reported from the Central Provinces and slightly lower readings from the coasts of the Peninsula. All over Northern and Central India during this period the sky was almost cloudless. On the 18th the chart showed that a small area of deficient pressure was forming over the Bay. This depression occasioned a slight "backing" of the wind on the east coast of the Peninsula, and the re-appearance of cloudy and rainy weather in that region. This depression subsequently moved away southward, but it left conditions over the Peninsula in a somewhat unsettled state, and showers of rain fell there for many subsequent days. The area of rainfall, however, steadily contracted from day to day. On the 20th showers were reported from Madura northward as far as Secunderabad and Vizagapatam, on the 25th they did not extend beyond Cuddapah, and by the close of the month rain had deserted the Peninsula and was only reported from one station in Ceylon. Over Northern and Central India, between the 18th and the end of the month, the weather was remarkably settled and fine. A large area of high pressure held steadily over that region accompanied by north-westerly winds down the Gangetic plain, north-erly winds over Bengal, north-easterly to easterly winds over the central plateau, and clear or nearly clear weather throughout the whole region.

The variations of the different elements from the mean show that, with the exceptions of Rangoon Roorkee, Hyderabad and Kurnool, pressure has been above the average of the month throughout the whole of the Indian region. The excess has been greater in the north-west and centre than elsewhere, and as great on the hills as on the plains.

The departures of temperature from the normal average have been less regular than those of pressure. In Burma, Assam, Orissa, Behar, and one or two stations in the North-Western Provinces and the Panjab, and at several places on the Bombay coast and in Sind, the weather has been abnormally warm, but elsewhere the changes are very irregular. At the hill stations and in the Upper Indus Valley, temperature has been lower than usual. The only regions within which rain was entirely absent during the month were the Panjab, both east and west, Behar, Sind, and Cutch. In every other part of India some rain fell, though in the trans-Gangetic portions of the North-Western Provinces in North Bengal the amount received was insignificant. The total rainfall of the month was generally deficient over Upper India, from Behar westward to the Indus, over Lower Burma and over Ceylon. Elsewhere it was in excess of the average. The greatest excess (4 inches) occurred in the Berars and Khandesh, but in Lower Bengal, Chutia Nagpore, the Central Provinces, Rajputana, the Konkan and Malabar the month's fall was about twice the average.

The following table shows the amount of rain and the difference from the average, during the month of November 1887, according to Districts as far as is indicated by the telegraphic reports :—

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

WEATHER SUMMARY FOR DECEMBER 1887.

The average barometric distribution in December is similar in most respects to that of November, and consists briefly of an area of high readings overlying North-Western India, from which pressure decreases and reaches a relatively low level over the south of the Bay and along the south-west coast. About the close of the month it is usual for the high-pressure area in North-West to show signs of instability, and it may sometimes altogether disappear and be replaced by a depression which has either formed in or advanced over the Punjab. Such a change in the pressure distribution is accompanied by a cyclonic circulation of the winds over a large part of India, and by very unsettled weather, but ordinarily the winds during this month exhibit an anticyclonic circulation, the weather is fine, and the sky, at least in Upper India, quite clear of cloud. During the past December the barometer has been steadier and the weather finer than usual, and though at the close of the month a depression appeared in the Punjab it proved to be so slight as to exercise but little effect either on the general pressure distribution or circulation of the winds.

On December 1st a large area of high pressure extended over the greater part of North-Western and Central India, while the lowest pressures were reported from Ceylon. This distribution was accompanied by north-westerly and westerly winds down the Gangetic plain; northerly winds over Bengal and a large part of the Bay, and easterly winds (N. E. and S. E.) over the Peninsula. The weather was fine throughout nearly the whole country, and the only rain-fall recorded was a slight shower at Galle. These conditions continued with but slight modifications until the 5th, when unsettled weather appeared on the Coromandel Coast, where the wind had "backed" to the north-westward and rain commenced. On the 6th a slight disturbance was shown off Negapatam and rain was falling at Rangoon, Madras and Coimbatore. In Sind also slightly deficient pressures were shown and the wind had a cyclonic tendency. On the 7th the depression off the Carnatic coast had disappeared as a distinct disturbance, but it had left the weather in Southern India in an unsettled state, and rather heavy rain had fallen both at Negapatam and Madras. In Sind there was no change. On the 8th rain was still falling all over Southern India, the largest amount being 3¾ inches at Madras. In Sind the barometer had risen and the depression almost disappeared. From the 9th to the 14th rain continued to be reported from the south of the Peninsula and Ceylon, but in other respects conditions were fairly normal, though in the North-West the weather was on some days rather cloudy and on the 12th a few drops of rain fell at Bareilly and Roorkee. On the 15th there was no rain in any part of the Indian region, and normal cold weather conditions prevailed generally. This fine weather lasted until the 19th. On the 20th slight showers of rain fell at Murree, Peshawar and Rawalpindi, and on the 21st rain again commenced in the south of the Peninsula. On the 22nd slight snow fell at Murree and rain at Peshawar, and general rain in the south of the Peninsula and over Ceylon. The rain in North-Western India was unaccompanied by any important change in pressure which remained high over the whole of that region. On the 23rd there was again rain at some north-western stations and also over Southern India, but there was still no change in the relative distribution of pressure. On the 25th the slight precipitation which had occurred in the North-West entirely ceased, but on the Carnatic coast showers were reported, which on the following day, extended to several southern stations. The chart of the 27th showed rain to be falling at nearly all the Madras stations as well as at some places in the Central Provinces also, and on the 28th the weather was unsettled over a large part of Central and Southern India. These unsettled conditions were apparently largely attributable to a diffused depression existing off west coast. On the 29th, notwithstanding that the barometer was falling almost everywhere, the weather, except in the south, improved, but on the 30th it again became very unsettled, and three barometric depressions, occasioning slight rain in their respective neighbourhoods, were shown on the chart. One lay between Mangalore and Karwar, a second between Surat and Indore and a third between Jeypore and Sirsa. During the 30th the disturbance which lay over the south of the Punjab apparently travelled towards the hills on a N. N. E. course, occasioning rain at Meerut, Roorkee, Delhi and Ludhiana and snow at Ranikhet, Mussooree, Chakrata, and Simla. By the evening of that day the disturbance had filled up, or disappeared. The chart of the 31st showed that the disturbance between Surat and Indore had also filled up after giving rain to Jhansi, Nowgong, Satna, Pachmarhi, Hoshangabad, Indore, and Akola, but that the storm on the west coast had advanced northward to Ratnagiri and was giving rain and fairly strong winds to the North Konkan.

Pressure.—The variations of pressure from the mean exhibit no very large abnormals. With the exception of Hyderabad (Sind) and Galle, they are everywhere less than 0·05″. In Assam the mean [illegible]e of the month shows hardly any departure from the normal average, but in nearly all other [illegible] Northern India, as well as at the great majority of the more central stations, there is a moder- [illegible] In the Peninsula, on the contrary, and at the stations in Sind, Guzerat and Rajputana, [illegible] the deficiency. There was hence an abnormally steep gradient for easterly winds during [illegible]ber.

Temperature.—The variations of temperature from the monthly mean have been somewhat irregular. In Eastern and Lower Bengal there has been a slight deficiency and in Assam and West Bengal a slight excess. On the plains of the North-Western Provinces and the Punjab the weather has been from 1° to 3° warmer than usual, while on the hills, on the contrary, it has been colder. In Ceylon, Malabar, and the Carnatic the mean temperature shows a deficiency of from 1° to 2°; but in the Circars, the central parts of the country, Rajputana, Guzerat, Sind and Bombay, there is an excess of about an equal amount. In the Punjab, from 26th to the end of the month, low night temperatures were experienced. On the 26th at Rawalpindi the minimum thermometer fell to 28°·9.

Humidity.—The air has been relatively dry, except in the south of the Peninsula.

Rain.—No rain has fallen during the month in Behar, North Bengal, Assam, Lower Bengal or Sind, and the amounts received in the other districts are, in the majority of cases, insignificant. Guzerat however, received considerably more than its average amount, and Mysore and the Carnatic had about twice as much as usual. In Ceylon about 25 per cent, more than the normal amount fell.

The following table shows the amount of rain and the difference from the average, during the month of December, 1887, according to districts, as far as is indicated by the telegraphic reports:—

Simla January 1888.

WEATHER SUMMARY FOR JANUARY 1888.

January is normally an unsettled month over Northern India. The high-pressure area which during November and December is a quasi-permanent feature in the pressure distribution of North-Western India, gives way frequently during January and is replaced by well-marked depressions which occasion clearly defined cyclonic winds, and often much rain and snow. The characteristics of these cyclonic vortices differ apparently according to the place of their origin. Those depressions which first show themselves over the north-west of the Panjab, though usually more or less deep, are ordinarily short-lived, and while occasioning unsettled weather over the Panjab and the west of the North-Western Provinces, both on the hills and plains, quickly fill up, so that their effects are limited almost entirely to the region over which they first make their appearance. Those depressions, on the contrary, which are first shown to the south of the Sulaiman range, and which are usually heralded by a brisk barometric fall all over Sind, Beluchistan and the Indus valley, are, though much shallower than those noticed above, much longer-lived and frequently traverse large tracts of country, travelling generally on an east-south-east course. Of these two classes of storms the past month has afforded one or two typical cases.

In addition to these storms, which are more or less characteristic of the season, the west coast has been visited by very unsettled weather occasioned by the passage northward of a series of distur travelling from the Malabar coast as far as the North Konkan or Guzerat coasts.

On the 1st, pressure was high all over Northern India and low on the Bombay coast eral wind circulation was fairly normal, though in the North Konkan the direction was n than is usually the case. Rain was falling in Khandesh, in the south of the Peninsula From this date until the 6th the principal feature in the weather was the passage nort pression along the west coast. This disturbance gave very unsettled weather to all the Bombay stations and to many in the Central Provinces. On the 4th and 5th the wind at Bombay had an average velocity of 17 miles per hour from north-east, and rainfalls varying from 3·5 inch to 2·7 inches were reported from the western and central stations. On the 6th the barometer was rising almost everywhere and the general distribution approximating to the normal, though the depression previously reported from the west coast had left steep barometric gradients and rather cloudy and unsettled weather to Western and Central India. From the 7th to the 10th the weather over India calls for little remark. Pressure was throughout high over North-Western India, and relatively low over Burma, Ceylon, and the west coast. The wind circulation was fairly normal and the weather was fine. On the 11th a small depression appeared in Lower Sind, occasioning a south-westerly wind at Karachi and Hyderabad and a north-north-easterly wind at Jacobabad, and rain at Quetta and Karachi. On the following day the storm from Lower Sind lay between Indore and Deesa and rain had spread to Mooltan and the north-west of the Punjab. The barometer was rising fast in the Indus valley and falling briskly in the central parts of the country. From the 13th to 19th there again occurred a period during which the barometric distribution was fairly normal, the wind circulation on the whole regular, and the weather generally fine, though on the 16th, 17th, and 18th slight rain fell over Rajputana, the North-Western and Central Provinces, and at some stations in the North-West Himalaya. On the 20th the first sign of an extensive change showed itself. On this day a rapid barometric fall took place at Quetta and in the Indus valley, and a large low-pressure area appeared on the western frontier, the centre of disturbance lying apparently to the south of Quetta and west of Jacobabad. Cyclonic winds were reported from Sind and parts of Rajputana and the Panjab. On the 21st a large diffused depression was shown over Sind, Guzerat, Central India, and the south of Rajputana, and south-easterly winds had appeared over nearly the whole of the North-West and Northern India and a northerly wind at Hyderabad (Sind). Rain was falling at Rawalpindi, Peshawar and Mooltan and snow at Murree. On the 22nd the depression had become much more clearly marked and somewhat deeper, and had its centre near Jeypur. Rather strong cyclonic winds circulated around the centre and rain had extended to most parts of the Panjab, as well as to Jhansi, Satna and Mount Abu. Snow was falling at Murree and Simla. By the morning of the 23rd the depression had reached Seoni and almost filled up. Its movement eastward had, however, been accompanied by an extension in the same direction of the rain-fall area, and rain on this day was reported from nearly all stations in Northern and Central India, from Bengal to the Indus. The rain at Rawalpindi, Sialkot and Gya and the melted snow on the hills of the North-West Himalaya exceeded 1 inch. On the 24th the depression lay between Raipur and Gopalpur. Rain still fell in Bengal but in Northern and North-Western India there had been considerable improvement in the weather. On the morning of the 25th a fresh depression was shown over Guzerat, and rain was falling over the whole of the Indus valley and the Panjab, and snow on the hills of the North-West Himalaya. This depression subsequently travelled east-south-eastward to the Central Provinces and developed very considerably. It occasioned a return of south-easterly winds and rain to the North-Western Provinces and gave north-westerly winds and rain to Rajputana and Guzerat.

At the same time, a local depression had appeared in the north-west of the Panjab, occasioning general rain and snow in its neighbourhood. About 3 feet of snow fell at Mussooree and Simla. By the morning of the 27th the Panjab depression had disappeared, while the Central Provinces depression had continued to travel south-eastward and lay near Gopalpur. Rain was reported from the whole of Bengal and the North-Western Provinces, but had ceased over the greater part of the Panjab and Rajputana. On the 28th the depression was crossing the Bay of Bengal and rain was still falling in Assam and around the head of the Bay, but in other parts of India the distribution of pressure and the circulation of the winds had become fairly normal, and except at a few places the weather had been fine. On the 29th the depression last seen near Gopalpur reappeared near Akyab, and rain was falling over Burma and Assam. In most other parts of India conditions appeared fairly quiet, but in Lower Sind rain and a falling barometer were reported. On the 31st a well-marked disturbance lay to the west of Rajkot, and strong easterly winds and rain were reported from Lower Sind. Elsewhere the weather called for no remark.

Pressure.—The mean pressure of the month has been above the average except at the hill stations where, alike at Darjeeling and on the North-West Himalaya, there has been a slight deficiency. The excess was greatest over the Peninsula and Ceylon, and least in Burma and the Panjab.

Temperature.—Except in Ceylon, the Circars, and part of Burma, the month has been cold almost everywhere. In Northern India the deficiency ranged from 1° to 5°; in the central parts of the country from 2° to 7°; in Rajputana from 4° to 6°; and in the Peninsula from 1° to 3°. On the hills between the 25th and the close of the month, sharp frost was experienced, the lowest temperature recorded being 21°·1 at Simla on the morning of the 27th.

Humidity—Has been generally below the mean in Northern, and above it in Central and Southern India.

Rain—Has fallen in all the Provinces, and the total amount has been slightly to largely in excess of average, except in Malabar, Mysore, the Carnatic, Ceylon, and North Bengal. The greatest excess, both absolutely and relatively, is reported from the Konkan coast.

This wet month has done much to obliterate the seasonal deficiency which has hitherto existed over Northern India, and, at several stations in Bengal and the North-Western Provinces, and at a few in the Punjab, the total rain-fall since November 1st is now in excess of the average. In Central and Western India there is a large excess.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

WEATHER SUMMARY FOR FEBRUARY 1888.

In February, pressure begins to fall generally throughout India. The steady increase which takes place during October, November, December and January reaches its maximum in the last-named month, and during February the decrease commences which lasts throughout the hot weather. In the present year the decrease between January and February has been unusually large, for whereas during January there was a general and rather large excess of pressure as compared with the average, there has during February been a slight to largish deficit. As a rule, the weather over Northern India is distinctly finer during February than during January. This has, however, hardly been the case in the present instance, as the unsettled weather, which prevailed in the north-west, west and centre of India during the latter part of January, continued during February. In Bengal and Assam also very unsettled conditions have at times prevailed.

On the 1st the general distribution of pressure was such as is characteristic of the cold season. A large area of high pressure (30·20″ and above) lay over Sind, the Punjab, Rajputana and part of the North-Western Provinces and the Central Provinces, while relatively low readings were reported from the west coast and from the south of the Bay. On the west coast the decrease of pressure occurred more rapidly than is normally the case, and a feeble depression apparently lay between Ratnagiri and Bombay. At both Bombay and Kurrachee the north easterly wind was blowing rather freshly. The weather was generally fine, the only rain-fall reported being at Kurrachee and Jeypore. On the 2nd the distribution was more complicated and less normal. A broad band of relatively high readings stretched across Northern India extending from the Western Punjab to Assam, while almost equally high pressures were reported from the Carnatic and the west of the Bay. At the same time low-pressure areas prevailed over Burma, and over Guzerat and Sind. The depression which on the previous day had been shown near Bombay had apparently passed northward to the Gulf of Cambay, while a separate and larger storm lay near Kurrachee. With this distribution of pressure the winds were in general very irregular in direction, but well-marked cyclonic circulations were shown over Western India. At Kurrachee the wind was blowing with a velocity of 21 miles per hour from north-east. The weather was very cloudy all over the north-west and rain had fallen at Kurrachee, Hyderabad, Jacobabad, Quetta, and Ajmere, as well at Darjeeling. On the 3rd, pressure decreased rapidly in the north-west of the Punjab and a fresh depression appeared in that region. Accompanying this additional disturbance there occurred a large extension in the rain fall area which included the whole of North-Western India, part of Central India, Sind and Guzerat. On the 4th, pressure rose over Western and fell over Eastern India. Rain ceased in Sind and Guzerat, but in Northern India it continued and extended eastward as far as Benares. On the 5th the weather improved. Rain was reported from Sibsagar, Dhubri, Allahabad and Nowgong, but elsewhere the sky had cleared considerably and conditions appeared more settled. Fine weather continued during the 6th, but on the 7th rain recommenced in Sind and Baluchistan, and during the 8th and 9th extended to the hill and submontane stations in the Punjab and North-Western Provinces. On the 10th the unsettled conditions were transferred from North-Western to North-Eastern India, and rather heavy rain was reported from almost all stations in Bengal and Assam. On the 11th rain still fell at several places in Bengal and Assam, but elsewhere the weather was fine. This fine weather continued during the 12th, but on the 13th at all the hill and submontane stations and also at those in Lower Bengal and Assam further precipitation was reported. From the 14th to the 17th showers of rain, generally of small amount, were of daily occurrence around the head of the Bay and in parts of Eastern Bengal and Assam, but over the greater part of India conditions were fine and fairly settled. On the 18th a brisk barometric fall accompanied with rain and a southerly wind were reported from Quetta, and on the following day rain was falling at several of the Punjab stations and at Jacobabad. On the 20th the rainfall had extended into the North-Western Provinces, while it had almost ceased in the Punjab; but on the 21st rain was reported from the west and north of the Punjab, the west of the North-Western Provinces, Jeypore and the Central Provinces. From this date until the 28th, showers of rain continued to fall at intervals over the Central Provinces, the Punjab and the west of the North-Western Provinces, but the amounts were generally small and on the whole the weather was fair. On the 29th the distribution of pressure and the winds were fairly normal, and the only rainfall reported was a few drops at Raipur.

In Southern India the weather calls for little remark. No rain whatever fell in the Carnatic and hardly any in any other part of the Peninsula. In Burma also the weather, as is generally the case, was very settled.

Pressure—Has been below the monthly average almost everywhere. At the hill stations in North-West Himalaya, the deficit has been less marked than on the plains; and at Mount Abu, Pachmarhi and Wellington there has been an excess, trifling at Mount Abu, but considerable at Wellington. In Ceylon also there has been a slight excess. The deficiency has been on the whole greater over Northern and Central India than in the Peninsula.

Temperature.—Like January this was a generally cool month, though the relative coolness was less than in the preceding month. In Ceylon, the Carnatic, the Berars, in part of the Central Provinces and at a few places in Bengal and Upper India, there was indeed a slight excess of temperature. The greatest deficiency was 3°·4 at Dera Ismail Khan, but this amount was closely approached at Jacobabad and Jeypore. Frost occurred regularly at the hill stations during the first half of the month, the lowest minimum reported being 27°·1 on the 10th at Chakrata. Subsequent to the 15th, temperature rose fairly briskly, so that, while the highest maximum reported on the first was 92° at Salem, that on the 29th was 99° at Surat.

Humidity.—Except in Bengal the amount of moisture in the atmosphere has been generally in excess of the average.

Rain.—No rain has fallen during the month in Behar or the Carnatic, and very little in the Berars, the Deccan, Mysore or Burma. On the other hand, Sind, Cutch and Rajputana have received much more than the normal amount, and the Punjab, the cis-Gangetic portions of the North-Western Provinces, Bengal, Guzarat, the Konkan, and Malabar have all received a greater or less excess.

The following table shows the amount of rain and the difference from the average during the month of February 1888, according to districts, as far as is indicated by the telegraphic reports:—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

WEATHER SUMMARY FOR MARCH 1888.

During March pressure falls everywhere throughout the Indian region, but to a much less extent over the Bay than over the land surface; hence over the Bay there is in normal years a region where pressure is higher not only than it is in any part of India, but also over the Equatorial Sea to the South. Pressure is ordinarily lowest over the east of the Central Provinces and Chutia Nagpur. During the past month there has been some considerable departure from these normal conditions. Relatively high pressures have, indeed, been shown over the Carnatic and the Bay, but on the West Coast pressure has been almost equally high. The greatest departure from the normal distribution has, however, been shown in respect to the position of the area of minimum pressure, which during nearly the whole month has been found either over North-Western or North-Eastern India. The wind directions have been fairly normal, though the southerly wind from the Bay into Bengal has been stronger and steadier than usual, while cyclonic circulations have at times disturbed the wind movements of Upper India.

The rainfall of March is usually light, and is generally attributable in the North-West to the appearance of a late cyclonic storm, and in Bengal and Assam to the early commencement of what is called the spring rainfall. In the past month the rainfall has been even lighter than usual, except in Assam and Cachar, where probably owing to the low pressures over North Bengal, noticed above, there has been a strong indraught of moist southerly winds from the Bay.

From the 1st to the 5th of March pressure was generally uniform throughout India, the winds light and variable, and the weather, except for a few light showers in the Berars and Central Provinces on the 2nd, was fine with a generally rising thermometer. On the 6th, however, the Chart showed a small cyclonic storm lying between Neemuch and Indore, and on that day or during the following night rain fell in Sind and all over the Central parts of the country. This rainfall gradually spread eastward, being reported from Hazaribagh and Raipur on the 8th and from Bengal, Assam, and Arrakan on the 9th and 10th. In the meantime the Chart of the 9th showed a brisk barometric fall all over North-Western India, and on the 10th a small but well marked depression lay near Dera Ismail Khan, where the barometer had fallen to 29·65". This depression travelled eastward from Dera Ismail Khan towards Lahore, and appeared on the 11th to be filling up, but on the 12th it underwent redevelopment, and the south-easterly winds on its northern and eastern side brought up slight rain to the north and east of the Punjab. At the same time moderate rain was falling over Assam and East Bengal. On the 13th the distribution was very complicated; a band of low pressure, with its minimum between Hyderabad and Jacobabad, stretched right across India from Sind to the Circars. To the south of this band the wind was westerly, to the east southerly, and to the north south-easterly and easterly. The two last currents apparently brought up much moisture, and rain was reported from nearly every station in Northern India from Assam to the Punjab. On the 14th the distribution of pressure had completely changed, the band of low pressure having disappeared, and readings being lowest over Western Bengal. The winds had at the same time become more variable, and rain was confined to Bengal and Assam. On the 15th, 16th and 17th local showers were reported from several parts of North-Western and North-Eastern India, but beyond this the weather called for no remark.

Between the 19th and 21st the distribution was complicated, but the weather was generally fine. On the 22nd the barometer began to fall fast over North-Western India, with southerly winds in the Indus Valley and rain at Quetta; and on the 23rd a large shallow depression was shown over the Western desert, and rain had extended to the north-west of the Punjab. On the 24th pressure had fallen quickly over the whole of Northern India, over which region a large low pressure area had been formed, while, owing to the barometer remaining steady in the South, rather steep gradients prevailed over India. In consequence the winds were strong—especially at the head of the Bay—and rain was falling in Assam. The Chart of the 25th showed that in addition to the low pressure area which still held over Northern Bengal, a small but rather deep depression lay over Upper Sind. The winds were strong in the neighbourhood of both disturbances. Rain continued in Assam, and was also falling at Quetta and Belgaum. By the morning of the 26th the depression from Upper Sind had advanced north-eastward to Multan. Round the disturbance there was a very complete cyclonic circulation of the winds, and rain was falling all over the north of the Punjab. Showers continued in Assam. By the following day, the 27th, the depression had disappeared, and a large high pressure area had been formed over North-Western India, while the lowest barometric readings were again shown over Bengal. This disturbance continued during the 28th; but on the 29th a brisk barometric fall occurred in the North-West, and on the 30th another depression was shown over the Punjab. This disturbance was however slight, and no rain accompanied it. On the 31st the weather was fine, except in Assam, where showers still continued.

Pressure.—The mean pressure of the month has been generally above the normal average over the Peninsula and the Central parts of the country, and below it over Northern India. The defect was generally small, except in the Punjab.

Temperature.—The mean temperature of the month has been in defect of the average over East Bengal, and at one or two places in the Peninsula, but has been in excess in all other parts of the country. The greatest excess, 5°, was at Rewalpindi, but at Agra, Ludhiana, Lahore, Chakrata, and Quetta it amounted to 4°. The area of maximum heat has, on the whole, advanced steadily northward. In the earlier days of the month Salem reported the absolute maximum for the Indian region. After the first week the Bombay Deccan became on the average the hottest district in India. About the 10th and 11th a sudden accession of heat was reported from Sind, but on the 12th the absolute maximum was again reported from Sholapur. On the 14th the hottest district was the Central Provinces and from that date till the close of the month the area of greatest heat oscillated northward and southward over the inland parts of the Peninsula, the Central Provinces, and the Berars. Quite at the close of the month a sudden rise of temperature occurred over Upper India, and maxima exceeding 100° were reported as far north as Sirsa and Delhi on the 30th and 31st; but previous to that date there had been a spell of unusually cool weather all over North-Western India.

Humidity variations were irregular.

Rain.—Notwithstanding the disturbed condition of the atmosphere, as evinced by the numerous depressions reported during the month, the rainfall generally was short of the average. In Assam and Cachar there was an excess of 1½ inch, and in Bengal, the Berars Khandesh, and the Konkan a trifling excess over the small amount usually received; but in all other parts of India the rainfall has been short.

The following table shows the amount of rain and the difference from the average, during the month of March 1888, according to Districts, as far as is indicated by the telegraphic reports:

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

WEATHER SUMMARY FOR APRIL 1888.

Over the greater part of India April was a hot and dry month. The thunderstorms, nor'-westers, and duststorms which in normal years are so frequent over a large part of the country, were during the past month much less numerous than usual, and the rainfall in the great majority of districts was much below the normal average. But the few storms which did occur were unusually violent, as though the energy which is ordinarily distributed through numerous small storms was, in the case of the present month, collected in the one or two storms which did occur. The tornado at Dacca on the 7th, and the violent nor'-wester in the Moradabad neighbourhood at the close of the month, are examples of this concentration of energy. The earlier part of the month was much more settled generally than the latter. Between the 1st and the 16th any rain which occurred was light and fell in the form of scattered showers, but about the 17th unusually strong winds set in around the head of the Bay, and poured an abnormally large amount of moisture into Bengal and Assam, and from that date onward to the close of the month rain fell daily, and at times heavily, over the whole of North-Eastern India.

In the Peninsula thunderstorms generally occasioning only slight rain occurred frequently between the 12th and the end of the month, the most unsettled days being the 15th and 20th, when rain fell over a very large area.

On the 1st the Chart showed a large area of relatively low pressure overlying the Gangetic plain and the Central parts of the country. From this area pressure increased in all directions, and was relatively high in Upper Assam, in Arakan, in Mysore, and in the extreme north-west of the Punjab. The differences were not however large, and the wind movement was generally light. Temperature had fallen since the preceding day, and the maxima reported, though high, were not abnormally so for the season. The highest maxima were 108° at Kurnool, and 107° at Sholapur and Cuddapah. Rain was falling in Assam. On the 2nd there was apparently unsettled weather over the North-West Himalayas, under the influence of which slight rain had fallen at the sub-montane stations of the Punjab. Barometric gradients had increased and the winds were somewhat stronger, but the general weather showed but little alteration. Temperature had continued to fall very generally, but the day temperatures were higher than on the 1st, Khandwa reporting a maximum of 113°, and Amraoti and Allahabad of 107°. On the 3rd the area of lowest pressure was transferred to North and Central Bengal, and the barometer had risen over the greater part of North-Western India. Beyond local showers, there was no rain of importance, and the weather was of the normal hot weather character. The Deccan remained the hottest part of the Indian region. During the 4th and 5th the lowest barometer continued to be reported from North Bengal, and unsettled weather prevailed in Assam, and probably on the Sikkim Himalayas. The distribution of temperature and the maxima were generally unchanged. On the 6th a well defined depression appeared over the Punjab, and was accompanied by strong winds and duststorms in its immediate neighbourhood. It, however, occasioned no permanent change in the general conditions, as on the following day, the 7th, pressure was again lowest over North Bengal. The weather at 8 A. M. was generally fine and bright, and hardly any rain was reported. In the evening of this day a tornado passed over Dacca, the particulars of which, so far as they are known, will be found at the end of the Summary. On the 8th, the barometer was low all along the line of the hills and highest in Mysore. North-westerly and westerly winds prevailed over the greater part of India, and southerly winds over the Bay and Bengal. Cloudy weather was reported from Burma, Assam, and the south of the Peninsula. Between the 9th and the 13th there was practically no change in the weather. Temperature slowly rose, and the indraught of southerly winds from the Bay into Bengal and Assam steadily continued. On the 14th a low barometer or depression appeared off the South Carnatic Coast, and caused the wind to shift to the northward at Madras, Negapatam, Salem, and Trichinopoly. It gave rain to several stations in south Madras, and this rainfall subsequently extended to all parts of the South of the Peninsula. The depression did not, however, develop, and during the 16th and 17th, the distribution of pressure was the same as that prevailing before the appearance of the disturbance viz., high in the South and South-West and low over Northern India, more particularly along the foot of the hills and in Bengal. On the 18th rain began to fall in the South, Colombo receiving as much as 6 inches, and on the following days, the 19th and 20th, rain was very general throughout the Peninsula. Colombo on the 20th again reported 6 inches. On the 21st rain almost ceased in the Peninsula, but began to fall generally in Assam and Bengal, and this rainfall continued in North-Eastern India until the close of the month. On the 23rd and 24th considerable disturbance occurred over North-Western India, and a large number of duststorms, in some places accompanied with rain, were reported from the Punjab, North-Western Provinces, Rajputana, and Central India. After this burst of unsettled weather there occurred a period of low relative temperature followed by conditions, such as are usually characteristic of the hot weather, and temperature rose steadily. At the close of the month dust and thunderstorms again occurred, and on the evening of the 30th a storm apparently descended from the hills in the neighbourhood of Mussoorie, and travelled across the western part of the North-Western Provinces. The particulars of this storm will appear in the May Summary.

The mean temperature of the month has been below the normal average over Ceylon, the south of the Peninsula, Lower Bengal, and Assam, and above it elsewhere. The greatest excess was in Sind, but all over Upper India, including the North-Western Provinces, Punjab, Rajputana, and Guzerat, the mean temperature was considerably higher than usual. The changes of temperature during the month were large and important; rapid falls over large areas taking place after the occurrence of duststorms, to be succeeded by equally rapid recoveries as the weather settled down to its normal condition. The rise of temperature during the month was by no means excessive as the following table of maxima will show:

and the maximum readings over a large part of the country were about the average.

Rainfall.—The comparatively constant rain which fell over North-Eastern India during the latter part of the month occasioned an excess of rain in the Provinces of Bengal and Assam. A slight excess was also reported from Rajputana and Central India, from the Konkan and from the Deccan, and a large excess from Ceylon. No rain fell in Sind, Cutch, or Guzerat, and generally outside those regions reporting an excess the rainfall of the whole month was very trifling.

The Dacca Tornado.—The following remarks are compiled from the reports furnished by Dr. Crombie and Mr. Hare, who were both in Dacca during the tornado. At about 7 o'clock on the evening of Saturday, the 7th April, the tornado struck the western extremity of the town of Dacca. Even in its first manifestations the storm was of great violence, and the rotatory movement of the wind within the storm area was evidenced by the directions in which plantain and other trees were found lying, after the storm had passed. The appearances before the storm burst were only such as usually accompany the approach of an ordinary nor'-wester. The vortex travelled at first on a south-east course along the old river bed, destroying every kutcha hut within its area, and it was hoped that the storm would continue to travel in this direction and so pass out into the open Maidan to the south of Nawabgunge, and the destruction due to it be thus reduced to a minimum. Suddenly, however, the centre moved to the northward and subsequently reached the Maidan to the south of Lalbagh. Here, freed from such obstacles as buildings, &c., the storm rapidly increased in energy, and after this short incursion into the open country the tornado, having gained such additional force as enabled it to destroy even the strongest houses, returned to the river. From Lalbagh the vortex crossed the river, and it was after this that the largest amount of damage was done, everything including the strongest masonry houses, being destroyed. The tornado apparently subsequently rose from the ground and passed high into the air.

It travelled altogether about 3½ miles at an estimated rate of 16 miles per hour. Its breadth varied between 200 and 180 paces, and the uprush of air within the centre must have been tremendous, as large beams blown from the falling houses were suspended in mid-air for distinct intervals by the violent uprush. The tornado did not pass over the observatory, so that there was no record of the lateral wind force.

The storm was so partial that those outside its path were hardly aware of anything unusual.

Very shortly after the tornado visited Dacca, a path of the Munshigung Sub-Division was visited by a tornado, either the same or another. The damage done by this was very severe, and it is at present reported that 66 deaths occurred, and that 128 persons were wounded. This tornado passed for a great part through open country, and did comparatively little harm to property, though, where it did strike houses, it carried them away more completely than in the crowded city of Dacca.

2. The fee for admission to the Show-yard will be one rupee for adults and 8 annas for children on the 1st day and 2 annas uniformly on the subsequent days. The forenoon of the 2nd day will be set apart exclusively for the admission of native ladies.

3. Members of Committee, and other persons attending the Show-yard on duty, will be furnished with free passes.

4. The arrangement of the Show will be conducted by the Show-yard Committee selected from among the members of the General Committee. All persons entering the Show-yard will abide by these regulations and those framed by the Show-yard Committee.

5. Care-takers of valuable exhibits will be granted free passes to the Show-yard at the discretion of the Committee.

6. Cover or shelter will be provided for all exhibits except implements. Applications for space must be made to the Secretaries in the prescribed form a month prior to the opening of the Show.

7. No exhibits will be admitted without an admission order signed by the Secretaries.

8. Separate application for space must be made for exhibits competing for different classes, and each exhibit must be accompanied by an entry notice, in the form supplied, duly filled up.

9. All exhibits except live stock, vegetables, dairy produce and similar perishable articles should be produced at the Show-yard 6 clear days previous to the day on which the Show opens.

10. Live stock must be in the Show-yard clear 24 hours before the opening of the Show.

11. Vegetables, fruits, dairy produce and other perishable articles must be delivered at the Show-yard before 7 A. M. on the day of the opening of the Show.

12. Articles that are not delivered at the Show-yard as provided in the rules 9, 10, 11, shall not be eligible to compete for prizes, but may be admitted to the Show at the discretion of the Committee.

13. Exhibitors will have to pay every expense of transit, delivery, fixing and removing their exhibits, and they must either personally or by their agents superintend the reception and removal of those exhibits; in default whereof the Committee reserves to itself the right of doing whatever may be considered necessary at the expense of the exhibitor.

14. Every reasonable care will be taken of the exhibits while in the Show-yard, but no responsibility will be accepted by the Committee.

15. All stock and exhibits of all kinds must be removed within four days after the close of the Show; exhibits remaining after that time will be disposed of as the Committee see fit.

17. The competing stock and exhibits must be marked with labels supplied duly filled up.

18. The age of all live stock (classified according to age) will be calculated from the first July of the year of birth, unless the exact age is specified.

19. Every animal must be properly secured by a nose-rope or otherwise, and dangerous or diseased animals shall be refused admission or removed from the yard by order of the Show-yard Committee.

20. Each animal or lot competing separately must be in charge of a care-taker who will remain in charge of the exhibit and must be ready to lead it out at any time as required by the Committee.

21. The Committee will supply water for live stock and arrange for keeping available in the yard a supply of fodder which can be obtained on purchase, but they undertake no responsibility as to the feeding or care of stock.

22. Implements and machines will be tested and ploughing matches held on the 2nd day of the Show.

23. The Judges in each class or group will not be less than 3 in number, but they are not bound to award any or all the prizes in each case if the exhibits do not, in their opinion, merit any reward.
